THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION.

VOL. XXII.

ATLANTA, GA., MONDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 22, 1890.

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

THE COMMITTEE ON RULES IS TIED.

And Senator Farwell Comes Out Against the Bill, and at the Same Time Criticises Little Billy Harrison

WASHINGTON, December 21 .- [Special.]-The force bill senators are in despair tonight, It is more apparent to them today than at any time since the force bill discussion opened that they are fighting a hopeless battle. The departure of Senator Ingalls this morning leaves the committee on rules deadlocked.

upon the gag rule resolution.

Senator Edmunds promised Hoar that he would take the chair, outrage the rules and put the question on the gag rule resolution. The Massachusetts granny was hopeful, but now that the committee is deadlocked, he is again crushed. Tonight, however, he partially persuaded Senator Aldrich to offer a gag rule on his own responsibility. Then Spooner is to circulate a paper among the republicans for the signature of all who will vote for the rule. If he gets sufficient support the cloture or gag rule will be offered. If not, he will await the arrival of the new Idaho enators, hoping with their signatures to make out a majority. Hoar and Spooner realize it will be almost impossible to do this; yet, as a last resort, the trial will be made.

THE FINANCIAL BILL. The chances tonight are the financial bill will not be taken up tomorrow. The eastern senators are afraid to handle it, since Reed's statement that he cannot control the house unless they have assurances that there will be no free coinage votes on the republican side. If they cannot get such assurances they think it best to ignore financial legislation, for they say that nothing is better than free coinage.

Speaker Reed stated again today to an antie-coinage senator, that he could not control the house, and furthermore he stated that he would make no attempt to do so. He was op dosed to free coinage and would dislike to see it, but he had made enemies among his own men by his arbitrary action on this question last session. He had estranged many of his strongest supporters in his speakership contest, and he would do no more dirty work for the president. He had strangled it last session only at Mr. Harrison's personal request, injuring himself thereby, and now that the president had ignored him in the apment of a collector at Portland, to gratify Mr. Blaine, he would see him in hades befor he would shoulder his burdens again.

This means nothing less than that the sen-ate free coinage bill would go through the house. Thus the eastern senators have but wo alternatives, free coinage of silver or Farwell Is Disgusted. Another republican senator has repudiated the force bill. This time it is Senator Fawell, of Illinois.

Senator Farwell left for Chicago yesterday. He would not talk to the press here, but when he reached Pittsburg last night, he gave vent to his feelings to a reporter there, and here is

"I don't think the federal elections bill will be passed. It will be killed by the obstruction tactics of the democrats, and others in spite of the president's entreaties. Mr. Harrison has not as much influence around Washington as he might have. He freezes everybody, and people who go to him with respect, leave with disgust. The country's opinion of his administration was shown in the recent election. Mind you, I was a supporter of President Har-

Windom's Wild Scheme Statesmen have generally agreed that the subtreasury scheme of the farmers is impract ticable and absurd, but in comparison with Secretary Windom's interconvertible bond scheme, nothing can be termed absurd.

That plan which he proposes shall be adopted to relieve the financial depression is simply a scheme which allows any one to go to the United States treasury and convert his oney into a bond bearing 2 per cent interest Then, when he becomes tired of holding this bond, he can take it to the treasury department and redeem it in legal tender notes. In other words, the scheme is simply one providing for the government to pay capitalists 2 per cent interest on their money if they will lock ing it from circulation.

It would not be more absurd to pay a farmer interest on all his land which he chooses to tion that they will, if uninterrupted, consume the first three days of the week. The possibilities of interruption hinge altogether upon the result of negotiations now in progress among the republican senators on the subject of the caucus financial bir. If a harmonious understanding to support this measure is reached, the elections bill may be laid aside in its favor, and discussion in the senate will turn on financial matters until the day before Christmas, when it is expected a recess will be taken until Monday.

IN THE HOUSE.

Probably an adjournment for two or three days at a time will mark the course of the house during the Christmas holiday season. No business of importance is expected to be done, as so many members have left Washington for home that a quorum can hardly be secured. The house is prepared to take a recess for the customary ten days or two weeks, but the temper of the senate was found averse to this, and at a meeting of the ways and means committee yesterday, when the Mills recess resolution was considered, a decided opposition was manifested to placing the house in the position of desiring ten days sholiday when the senate wanted to go m with its work.

Such other days in the week as the house is in session will probably be devoted to comparatively unimportant measures, and to roll calls on motions to adjourn. Several appropriation bills have been reported, and an effort may be made to pass some one of these.

RIDDLED WITH BULLETS. The Quick Vengence Visited on a Negro

Desperado. JACKSON, Miss., December 21.-[Special.]-News was received here of a murder and subsequent Lynching at Silver Creek, Yazoo county. It appears that Clarence Martin, a very bad negro of that section, entered the store of H. A. Rosenthal while drunk, and became very abusive and insulting. Rosenthal ordered him to step or get out, when the negro drew his pistol and fired at both Rosenthal and his clerk, killing the former. The news of the murder spread rapidly and soon a large crowd gathered, and taking the negro to the woods close by, he was hanged and his body riddled with bullets.

THE FIRE RECORD.

An Early Morning Fire in Tampa-Disastrous Fire in Athol.

TAMPA, Fla., December 21.—At 4 o'clock this morning a fire was discovered in the wholesale grocery and grain store of Fuller & Sons, and despite the efforts of the firemen the building was entirely consumed, together with the adjacent warehouse and the livery stable of Spencer, Henderson & Co. Fuller's loss is about $6,000; insurance $3,000.

The only goods saved was one small lot of commercial fertilizers. Spencer, Henderson & Co. saved all their horses and mules, and all stock except one carload of farm wagons. Their loss is fully covered by insurance. During the progress of the fire an attempt was made to blow open Fuller's safe, and the supposition is that burglars set fire to the building.

ATHOL, Mass., December 21.—The most dis-ATHOL, Mass., December 21.—The most disastrous fire ever known in Athol occurred today. The Masonic and Central blocks were completely destroyed. Five merchants, the postoffice, Masonic rooms, etc., were burned out. A. C. Porter, George Burnham, L. C. Perry and William Connor, of the Orange firemen, were seriously injured by falling walls, Perry probably fatally. Alexander McLeon, foreman of the Star hose, fell thirty feet from a ladder, fracturing his skull. The property lost is $135,000; insurance $75,000. Both blocks were owned by Elisha Webb, of Petersham, and were valued at $45,000; insurance sham, and were valued at $45,000; insurance

Other losses are: C. A. Carruth, clothier, loss, $25,000; insurance, $13,500. E. C. Cleveland, variety store, loss, $9,000; insurance, $6,000. Postoffice fixtures, lloss, $1,000. Masonic lodge, $3,500; insurance, $5,500. Hollisstate, musical merchandise, loss, $1,000; no insurance. Smith's shoe store, loss, $8,000; insurance, $7,000. Fred Lord, druggist, loss, $7,000; insurance, $5,000. B. F. Barrus, proprietor of the Central house, loss, $3,000; insurance, $1,150. W. W. Cruel Story. SAN FRANCISCO, December 21.—Chinese advices report the execution of sentences advices report the execution of sentences on villagers near Shanghai, China, for the cruel nurder of fourteen salt inspectors, and burning the bodies of the wounded and dead. Last March these salt inspectors made a raid on the village. They wore no uniform, and the villagers mistook them for pirates. The inspectors seized a pile of contraband salt, which they found by the side of a house, and while removing it to their boats they were attacked by the villagers and overpowered. Nearly all were only stunned by the blows, but a visit to their boat showed the villagers that they had attacked government officers, and fearful boat showed the villagers that they had attacked government officers, and fearful of severe punishment, they decided to burn the boat and with it the bodies of the two under inspectors, to remove all traces of the erime. So they carried the injured men to the boat, and, despite their entreaties, set fire to it and burned the whole. The chief criminal was sentenced to decapitation, but committed suicide before the day arrived, and according to law his body was exhumed, and the head struck off and exhibited as a warning to the public. Four others were strangled and

ALL AGAINST INGALLS.

The Farmers' Alliance Passing Resolution Against Him.

Against Him.
Wichita, Kas., December 21.—A convention of representatives from the Farmers' Alliance of the seventh Kansas congressiona district met here yesterday, to take action upon the election of a successor to Senator Ingalls in the senate. A resolution was adopted instructing all the Farmers' Alliance members of the legislature from the seventh district to vote against Ingalls and work for his defeat. Efforts to secure the endorsement for one or another of the candidates were unsuccessful. Crushed With an Iron Standard.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., December 22.-[Special.] Charles Johnson, a paper hanger, was struck and fatally injured last night by a young clerk named Ridgeway in W. W. Williamson's cierk named kidgeway in W. Williamson's store. Johnson, who was drunk, entered the store and enquired for his friend. As he passed out, he picked up a silk umbrella, but a clerk, Mac Walker, took it away from him. He returned presently, and, after a tirade of abusive language, started toward Walker with an open knife. Ridgeway came to Walker's assistance, and struck Johnson, it is thought, with an iron standard, crushing the side of his skull. Ridgeway fled and has not been arrested. Too Much Liquor Killed Him.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., December 21.—[Special.]—Jim Hill, a colored man arrested last night drunk on the streets, was found dead in his cell this morning at police headquarters. At the coroner's inquest held this afternoon it was brought out that Hill had drank, on a wager a pint and a half of liquor at a suburban grocery store.

Confederate Home in Missouri. Sr. Louis, December 21.—The trustees having in charge the erection of the Confederate Home of Missouir, held a meeting here yesterday, and selected the noted Grove Young farm, near Higginsville, Mo., for the site of their soldiers' home. Funds are being raised by private subscriptions, and the erection of the buildings will be commenced as soon as the title to the property can be transferred.

A Cutting Scrape at Fish Dam. Union, S. C., December 21.—[Special.]—A cutting scrape occurred at Fish Dam, ten miles south of here, a few nights ago, in which one negro was cut to pieces. He died in a few hours. Several others were slightly gashed. The cutting took place at a negro frolic. Whisky caused the trouble.

KILKENNY, December 21 .- Mr. Parnell and Mr. Scully, the Parnellite candidate for parliament, left here at noon today, and drove in a closed carriage to Clare. They were accompanied by a long procession of cars filled with Parnell's supporters. Upon arriving at Clare, the Parnellites found a meeting proceeding, opposite the Catholic chapel, in support of Sir John Pope Hennessey. When Mr. Parnell reached the crowd, a priest, Father Walsh, addressing Mr. Parnell said: "These are chapel grounds. You must not speak

A local farmer here interposed by saying the ground did not belong to the chapel, that it was Keogh's field, and that Parnell had a perect right to speak there. Mr. Parnell invited Father Walsh to hear both sides. Arrangements had been made to hold a meeting in that field, he said, and it must proceed. Father Walsh then requested everybody on his side to leave with him, and some few persons followed the priest and Sir Thomas Esmonde, who was also present.

THE MEETING ORGANIZED. The meeting then organized and Mr. Par-nell made an address. He said, although his party did not have all the clergy on his side, he had no harsh words for any one of them. He desired the people to listen to the voice of the priests, and to reverence their position as priests. Yet, as laymen, the people could not permit the priests to absolutely control elections. He proceeded to inveigh against the traitorous mutineers who were enfeebling the party at the most critical moment. He asked his hearers to consider his political past, and look into his innermost heart and say whether they found any wrong there as regarded his guidance of the national policy. [Cries of "No, no."] He could not look an assemblage of his countrymen in the face if he did not speak the truth.

ON THE WAY TO JOHNSWELL.

After some further remarks, Mr. Parnell concluded his speech, and leaving Chare, accampanied by Mr. Scully, he drove six miles to Johnswell, where another meeting was held. While Mr. Scully was addressing this meeting Timothy Harrington arrived and was received by the crowd with much enthusiasm. Being called upon for a speech, Harrington addressed the meeting. In the course of his remarks he said that his colleagues in America had been led astray by messages from this side of the ocean. from this side of the ocean.

Mr. Parnell east.

Mr. Parnell ext spoke. He reminded the electors that they had to deal with English statecraft, which was watching to seize every point of vantage ground, that Irishmen surrendered. It was not a bir board of grardians for which Ireland contended. It was for a parliament that would fully satisfy the aspirations of the people. To achieve this the people must stand by their leader, and not leave Ireland to the incapable persons who were trying to step into his shoes. His opponents had elected an amiable man—a quiet, goodhearted soul. McCarthy was the sort of man to ornament a quiet and early tea party. to ornament a quiet and early tea party.

He knew every in dragging him out. He knew every one of these men, and from the depths of his heart he could say that if he thought he could leave the destinies of Ireland safety in their guard-ianship, he would cheerfully and willingly step down and aside. But he knew such a thing was impossible, and it would be a coward's part to leave his country to be torn asunder by twenty factions contending be torn asunder by twenty factions contending for power and place. The men opposing him were not elected to sit in judgment upon him. They had no authority through the voice of the people. Until Ireland gave him his dismissal, he would regard himself as the commanding officer, carrying the national banner through the ranks of the foe. [Cheers.] He believed Kilkenny would decide for them. If not, he would not be down hearted, but would still hold aloft the fing until every constituency in Ireland had had an opportunity of declaring its judgment in a clear voice. [Cheers.]

WILL GO TO MEET O'BRIEN. Mr. Parnell goes to Avondale after the elec-tion in Kilkenny, and will proceed thence to Paris to confer with William O'Brien.

Davitt at Goresbridge. Davitt at Goresbridge.

In his speech at Goresbridge, Mr. Davitt said that if Sir John Pope Hennessey was defeated, the Irish people would no longer be able to count upon an alliance with any English statesman. Parnell, he continued, had in desperation appealed to the hillside men. to the Fenian sentiment of the country. It would be criminal folly for him, or any other man to ask the young men of Ireland to face the overwhelming might of England in the field. Parnell himself would be the last man to lead the way to this policy of madness and desperation, and he was only making his appeal in the hope of snatching victory in Kilkenny.

A number of Parnellites had intended to greet him when he landed from the Aurania in Queenstown he landed from the Aurania in Queenstown, and had organized a torchlight procession in his honor. They missed being present on the steamer's arrival, but nevertheless they made a demonstration, assembling on the quay and marching the streets, with cheers for Parnell and groans for Healy. MR. HARRINGTON SPEAKS.

Mr. Harrington, at Queenstown, said he believed that if Mr. 40 Brien had been at home, or if Parnell had seen his way to retire in accordance with the wishes of the majority, the present disastrous crisis would have been averted. He supposed, however, that Parnell had good reasons for the course he had adopted. Harrington further said that he regretted the personalties in which both sides had induiged. He was surprised that Parnell had descended to use scurrillous language, and had applied offensive epithets to his late colleagues. The unfortunate split in the party, he said, had frustrated the objects of the American mission, which it would be useless to renew at present, for while Irishmen were in their present bewildered state, they would refuse to listen to the appeals of either party. MR. HARRINGTON SPEAKS.

Speaking at Cork, when the mayor made an ddress to him, Mr. Harrington contended that

TODAY IN KILKENNY

THE BATTLE OVER PARNELL WILL

BE WAGED.

Whether or not Parnell's action was right, those who, after re-electing him leader, sought to oust him, forfeited the confidence of the Irish people. The English democracy, he declared, would support home rule, and it was only necessary to bring it up to scratch the English politicians, who would likely betray them if disappointed in getting places after the general election. Mr. Parnell was not a mere political leader, but rather the general of the country, leading his army to freedom. However men might shake their heads in family circles, this was not the time to desert him, and with him Irish into desert him, and with him Irish in-dependence, which was more valuable than Gladstone's intentions. The question of pub-lic morality was settled at Leinster hall, and the secoders possessed by the seceders possessed no programme or plan justifying their desertion of their leader.

HE COULD THROW A BRICK AT SOMEBODY.
Harrington said he was amazed at the action of certain members of the McCarthyite faction in attacking Parnell from a moral standpoint. He said he could throw a strong side light on their morality, which would astonish the public. As for Davitt's opposition, it was dishonest and unpatriotic, and was simply the expression of Davitt's old enmity toward Parnell.

Mr. Gladstone Writes a Letter. London, December 21.-Mr. Gladstone, in his letter to Sir Robert Peel's grandson (Speaker Peel's son), who is a home rule candidate in Marylebone district, says:

"For the first time since commencing in parliament the struggle under O'Connell, the Irish party, bent on a constitutional and ef-fective scheme for home rule, is looking to Great Britain to pronounce judgment in the contest between it and the minority of seceders under Parnell. The liberals of Great Britain, who themselves since 1882, have had to resist and overcome a similar secession, will not doubt which side they are to recognize with the name and true title of the Irish party, with its honorable tradition of resistance to wrong. Assuredly you court the Irish party, with its honorable tradition of resistance to wrong. Assuredly you enter the field at a moment of extreme interest; when the cause of wisdom, justice and freedom has claims upon all who love it, enhanced beyond the ordinary standard."

THE NARROW ESCAPE

Which Was . Made by Rare Presence Mind.

WAYNESBORO, Ga., December 21.-[Special.] Mr. William H, Pace, one of our largest and best farmers, while supervising the running of a cotton gin engine on Thursday last, was caught in the machinery and whirled around instantly, and before he knew it he was securely caught, and he had presence of mind enough to catch and resist in all his power the force of the engine, and in one or two seconds his coat, outside shirt, undershirt and part of his pants were torn from his person like lightning, and his breast and sides of the severely lacerated but not seriously so. It was a most marvelous escape from death. His entire clothing was stripped from his person in a flash, and had he not resisted the power onickly he would have been masked to power quickly he would have been mashed to jelly, the engine being a most powerful twenty-horse power.

MORTGAGES NOT TAXABLE.

An Important Decision by the Supreme Court of Tennessee.

Nashville, Tenn., December 21.—[Special.]—The supreme court has rendered a decision in the case of the South Nashville Building and Mechanics' Savings Association vs. H. B. Morrow, trustee, that is of importance not only to building associations, but to holders of mortgages throughout the state. Mortgages on real estate held by the associations, and the state of the state tion were assessed for state and county taxes.

The state tax was paid, but a bill was found to enjoin the collection of the county tax.

This bill was dismissed in the lower court, and appealed. Justice Lea, in announcing the decision, said the bill was promptly filed. The court decided that a mortgage is not taxable. It is not property, but simply a security. The decision dismissing the bill was overruled, and the case remanded for further proceedings. The court adjourned until December 30th.

THE STATE TREASURER'S BOOKS.

An Examination Shows That They are All Correct.

RALEIGH, N. C., December 21.—[Special.]—The joint legislative committee today completed its annual examination of the books and vouchers of the state treasurer. These were all found in perfect shape. All the state's indebtedness was promptly met. The balance of the public fund on hand December 1, 1889, was $5,770, and during the year ending November 30th, last, the receipts were $1,183,393. The amount disbursed during the twelve months was $1,051,91, leaving off the general fund on hand, December 1st, last, $137,343. The balance of the educational fund on hand a year ago was $11,623, and the receipts during the year were $23,757. THE COWARDLY ASSASSINATION OF SITTING BULL.

SHOT DOWN WITHOUT WARNING. The Indian Police Guilty of a Brutal Assassi nation-The True Story of Sitting Bull's Death Coming Out. BISMARCK, N. D., December 21.-It is now being claimed that Sitting Bull was murdered in cold blood, without a doubt. A corporal who was there is authority for the statement that it was nothing short of deliberate assassination by the Indian police. The reports, garbled by the military authorities, say that Bull was taken unawares at daybreak while still in bed, grabbed a revolver, which was wrenched from his hands, and a fearful hand-to-hand encounter ensued between the hostiles and the police. Corporal Gunn denies this statement. Sitting Bull was not in bed when the police called. He came to the door to hear the warrant of arrest read, and Bull Head, lieutenant of police, shot him down before any resistance could be offered. Corporal Gunn belongs to the Eighth cavalry, and was with the troops that went out in support of the Indian police. His account of Monday's fight on Grand river is very much at variance with the reports thus far received. Men posted on Indian affairs, firmly believe that the corporal's story is the only authentic tale of the manner in which Sitting Bull met his doom. He is the only eye-witness who has given his account to a newspaper man. He came up from Fort Yates today on a furlough to spend Christmas at his home in St. Paul.

In the first place, Corporal Gunn says, Captain Fechet did not have orders to follow the police to Sitting Bull's camp, and the military forces have been wrongfully censured for not being closer to Bull's camp when the fighting was going on. The truth is, the Indian police were overzealous, and wanted all the credit of Sitting Bull's capture, dead or alive. They did not like him. Every Indian at the agency, except Bull's immediate followers, was jealous of the latter's prominence as a chief, and only tee visid of an experiturity being afforded under too glad of an opportunity being afforded under government protection to shoot him dead. The policemen, numbering thirty men, with Lieutenant Bull Head in charge, started from Fort Yates about 9 o'clock in the evening. They were constantly reinforced by other detachments coming up in the rear. The cavalry of 100 men left just a few minutes before midnight the same evening. The two forces were instructed to move to two different points—the police to Grand river and the cavalry to Oak Creek—where they were to find couriers or orders from the police as to the movements of the latter. Not finding any word there, Captain Fechet became alarmed for the safety of the advance guard and started on to Grand River at a rapid gait. too glad of an opportunity being afforded unde alarmed for the safety of the advance guard and started on to Grand River at a rapid gait. Before they were more than a couple miles out from Oak Creek, Red Tomahawk, an Indian policeman, met them. He was breathless and greatly excited and unable to talk coherently. He was riding Sitting Bull's horse, which was covered with foam. Even Louis Primeau, the interpreter, could not for a few moments make out what the Indian wanted to say.

"Sitting Bull is killed." he screeched, "and four of our men are killed with him. Hurry up quick or they will all be killed."

were strewn a dozen or more dead bodies, Sitting Bull's among them. Everything was quiet. Four dead Indian police were lying quiet. Four dead Indian police were lying with the hostiles. All the bodies were in a radius of thirty feet, except a half-breed educated Indian dressed in citizen's clothes, named Fox. Fox was a smart Indian, and acted as a sort of private secretary to Bull during all his famous correspondence with the government. Fox was the only Indian dressed in citizen's clothes. The balance were togged out in paint and feathers for war. His body fell twenty yards away from the rest. The bodies of the four dead police have already been propared for burial by their courades. The legs were tied tightly together with buckskin thones, the arms straped securely n thongs, the arms straped their sides and a cloth er the features of each to hide the awful disfigurement.

"Before proceeding with this story of the fight, or massacre, by the government, something should be said concerning the two houses owned by Sitting Bull. He lived in one with his sons, and the other was occupied by his wives and family. About fifty lodges are in the vicinity, which are located in the dense willows within easy calling distance from willows, within easy calling distance from Bull in case of emergency. Lieutenant Bull Head, of the Indian police, went to Sitting Head, of the Indian police, went to Sitting Bull's house, opened the door, and commenced reading the warrant for his arrest. Sitting Bull and his two sons, one a lad of twelve, were the only persons in the shack. He carried arms like all Indians. The boy came to the door and gave a cry of alarm on seeing the house surrounded by police. He no sooner cried out than Bull Head, without a moment's hesitation, and before any resistance was cried out than Buil Head, without a moment's hesitation, and before any resistance was offered, fired at Sitting Buil, the ball fiercing his breast immediately over the left nipple. As he was staggering, he managed to draw his revolver, and fired one shot while falling, the bullet lodging in Bull Head's thigh.

Sitting Buil fell about six feet away from the door. His horse was standing near the house, and Red Tomahawk jumped upon it and flew to the troops with the news. Crow Foot, the boy, was next killed, and he fell across the body of, his father. The combat was then hand to hand, Sitting Buil's enraged followers rising up from the brush like magic. But few shots were fired. Guns were clubbed, the stocks were shattered to splinters and the the stocks were shattered to splinters and the barrels were bent. The faces of the dead were horribly blackened by powder and dirt. The Indian police soon found themselves handicapped and sought refuge in Bull's de-cented the key leaving a training the face. serted shack, leaving outside four of their own dead and nine of the hostiles, including the old chief. The police began peppering hostiles from the shack, but with little effective from the shack of the nosties from the shack, but with little effect. The hostiles promptly returned the fire, shooting out every window pane. They had retired to an ambush when the soldiers appeared. The willows were so dense that not a form was visible, but were so dense that not a form was visible, but the chattering of the excited squaws could be heard. Captain Fechet formed a skirmish line and began pouring shot into the ambush. Shouts and cries were heard and the corperal thinks a great many more hostiles were killed than reported. The soldiers soon after reterned to the post, taking with them the dead and wounded of both sides and two prisoners, nephews of Sitting Bull, whom the squaws were trying to shelter from capture. One was nephews of Sitting Bull, whom the squaws were trying to shelter from capture. One was twelve the other eighteen years old. The elder had several rounds of ammunition on his person, but no weapons. Both are now prisoners in the guardhouse. Sitting Bull's scalp was lifted by one of the braves. Some of the Indian police swear that Red Tomahawk killed Sitting Bull, but as it is also known to a certainty that Bull Head shot him through the left breast, the post surgeon thinks this was the fatal wound. Red Tomahawk is not a permanent policeman and did not wear a uniform at the time of the conflict. He is evidently scared, as he refuses to say not wear a uniform at the time of the conflict. He is evidently scared, as he refuses to say anything of his part in Sitting Bull's killing. Bull Head was carried to the post, where he afterwards died from the wound inflicted by Sitting bull, making fourteen casualties actually known. Many more hostiles are believed to have been killed in the brush.

Just before Bull Head expired he admitted that he killed Sitting Bull, so his glory goes to the happy hunting grounds with him. Sit-ting Bull's body was in a horrible shape. In fact, all the dead were frightfully mutilated. One of the Indians battered the dead chieftain's face with a plank, and after tiring of this devilish sport he balanced it across his nose, and with maniacal glee left it remaining in that position. Bull's eyes were gouged out his few remaining hairs were clipped off, his moceasins removed, and nearly every stitch of clothes carried away for relies. The hostile, are slowly coming in, and it is believed that with the death of Sitting Bull the trouble with Standing Rock has ended. In Sitting Bull's effects were found letters and documents of all descriptions from all over the country. Most of them were from people inclosing a slip of paper for his autograph, but he never responded to these requests unless a fat monetary consideration came with the letter. His signature always commanded $1, and he found ready sale for it. All he could write was his name, and One of the Indians battered the dead chieffor it. All he could write was his name, and Sitting Bull's body, when brought in from Grand river, was taken to the military hospital to be dissected. The Indians at the agency, police and friendly Indians, would have nothing to do with the remains. It is said have nothing to do with the remains. It is said the morning when Bull was to be buried a couple of soldiers took the box supposed to contain his remains and dumped it in an isolated grave away from the graves of the Indians, and a guard was placed around it.

It is an open secret that really the box did not contain the remains and that the guard was put on the grave as a blind. It is believed Sitting Bull's body is now in the dissectingroom, and that in time the skeleton will turn up either in the government museum or some other place.

The Kickapoos Are Not Ghost Dancing. A GKLAHOMA, December 21.—There is no truth in the report that 1,000 Kickapoos are engaged in a ghost dance in the Indian Territory. There are only 300 Kickapoos, all told, and they are on their reservation, engaged in their usual peaceful pursuits. The ghost dancing by other tribes has almost entirely stopped, and no alarm is felt.

CLIFTON FOR CONGRESS.

Groundswell for Chatham's Favorite if There Was an Opening.

SAVANNAH, Ga., December 21.-[Special.]-The publication in The Times of THE CON-STITUTION'S article, stating that Mr. Clifton's name was mentioned as a probable congress man-at-large, created quite a furore among his friends here. They are confined to no section of the city and to no class. No other Savannahian can boast of more friends than he. Since he identified himself with the city he has grown in the esteem and confidence of the people. Consequently the news that higher honors were probably in store for him was received with many evidences of satisfaction.

RALLYING TO CLIFTON. Today THE CONSTITUTION correspondent found men everywhere ready to discuss the matter. They generally talked in the same yein, that Mr. Clifton is a man whose whole soul is with the people, who would work steadily for their interests and who would well represent the people of the entire state. "Brought up in a farming community and with a more extended acquaintanceship among farmers than even most farmers possess, he understands their situation and their needs perfectly." said they.

THE MAN FOR THE FARMERS.

The farmers could have no better repres rative than he would be. His knowledge of the law, and the experience he has already ob tained in the state legislature would also fit him to be an efficient congressman. His power of making and holding friends, so useful to a man in political life, would be of incalculable benefit in Washington. "If Georgia Is to have a congressman-atlarge;" said a number of citizens, "the legislature could not make a better choice than

THEY ALL WANT HIM. counties, who are in the city, were asked for an expression of their views. They stated that in their respective sections no one was more popular with the people or more trusted than Mr. Clifton. The same is true of Emanuel, Burke, Bryan, Montgomery, Screven, Appling and other counties, where the Chatham legislator has a host of warm friends.

sad and peculiar death occurred near this city on Friday night. The deceased was Mrs. Lamar, wife of Mr. Laworsia Lamar, who lives in the Rutland district. Mrs. Lamar was found the Rutland district. Mrs. Lamar was found dead in bed yesterday morning. She had not been sick in the least, and was seemingly enjoying as good health as ever in her life. At 1 o'clock Saturday morning she was alive and well and got up to light a lamp. She went back to bed and went to sleep. The next morning her husband was horritied to find his good wife cold and stiff in death. An examination showed that her death was caused from heart disease. The decease was well known in Macon and was highly connected. Her husband is one of the most influential planters in this section, and is a man well known to all. A number of Maconites went out to the home of Mr. Lamar this morning, to be present at the funeral. The interment took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

BISHOP HAYGOOD PREACHES

To One of the Largest Congregations Ever Seen in Macon.

Seen in Macon.

Macon, Ga., December 21.—[Special.]—Seldom, if ever, has there been seen in Macon such a congregation as that assembled at the Mulberry street church this morning.

The cause of this was the sermon to be preached today by Bishop Haygood, who is here presiding over the regular annual conference of the south Georgia Methodists.

The church was packed throughout, and over 100 people were unable to get inside.

Bishop Haygood's sermon was one of the most eloquent ever heard here. The learned and revered man spoke in a most earnest way of the duties of the church, and defended the cause of Christianity with a noble zeal. His words were listened to with wrapt attention by the immense throng and his sermon awoke the hearts of many.

As was stated in today's Constitution, the appointments for the south Georgia conference will not be read until tomorrow.

The train was running twenty-five miles an hour. His skull was badly fractured, the whole back of his head being crushed in. He is a consin of . W. Spaight, who lives here. Twelve dollars and eighteen cents were taken from his purse, together with two return trip tickets and a roll of $50 and a deposit ticket on the Planters' and Merchants' bank of Ozark for $20.30 from his vest pocket. His remains will probably be taken to Ozark tomorlow. THERETO STATE IN THE COURT CARD APPOINT AND THE THE THE Crowds of Men, Women and Children Block ing the Streets with Christmas Goods of Every Description.

The jingle of Kris Kringle's merry bells can be heard in the distance. Atlanta always appears to advantage in hol-iday attire, and never was she more gorgeously arrayed than now. The very atmosphere is warm with the odor of Christmas good cheer

The year has been a happy one, a prosper-ous one, a year to be remembered with pleasure in days to come because of the wonderful strides that the city has made in every direction of progress and improvement.

Everybody is in a good humor, and pleasant anticipations light up the faces of the popula-tion of this fair city.

Some Street Scenes.

Saturday before Christmas is the great day

Early in the day the cotton wagons rolled in with "pap and mam and the young'uns," and Marietta and Decatur, Peters and Forsyth streets were full of them.

Later on, after the cotton had been sold, they drifted citywards, and it was an absolute pleasure to watch them picking their way leisurely along the crowded business streets, gazing with unalloyed enjoyment on the gorgeous show windows, the numerous Santa Clauses and whatnots exhibited by the merchants on the streets.

Then came the toy buying, and tin horns, trumpets, fire crackers, candy and so on for the little ones; new stockings and gowns for "the old 'oman," and—well, a jug of the "genuine stuff" for the old man, until the Christmas fund was all expended.

Late in the afternoon long cavalcades of these honest citizens could be seen making their way homeward, and laugh and jest went merrily round.

There was many a happy country home in Fulton county last night. "Punch and Judy."

Of all the taking cards that has been gotten up in Atlanta, "Punch and Judy" bears off For a week John Ryan's Sons have had this old-time comedy in their window, until a detailed policeman has been stationed there to keep the street open. The children never tire of it, and elderly people stand there and crane their necks for hours deeply absorbed in the contemplation of the antics of this ridiculous show. This ancient comedy dates backs to 1600, when Silvio Fiorillo, an Italian comedian, brought the play out. In the seventeenth century it became the rage in England, and the illustrious Addison even went so far as to publish a lengthy criticism of the play in The Spectator.

It is played with puppets, and Punch, the hero, after committing all sorts of diabolical deeds, outwits the sheriff by hanging him on his own gallows, downs the doctor with his own physic, and finally triumphs over the devil in his own proper shape and disappears amid great applause.

It is said that the appearance of a "Punch and Judy" show in any part of the city of London is sufficient to create a street blockade It is one of those things that are immortal and never grow old. Some Santa Clauses. There are plenty of Santa Clauses in the city. Several of the big stores on Whitehall and Peachtree contain very fine specimens. But Burke, the Old Book Store man, has the most unique. His Santa Claus is perched in a chimney over the awning in front of the store on Marietta street, and by means of machinery inside the store he is made to sound his bugle lustily. These figures are of unfailing interest to the little folks, and the ruddy face and long gray whiskers, with the jovial and beaming expression, put the boys in a merry

And so The Constitution joins in the uni-

The Election in Irwinton. The Election in Irwinton.

IRWINTON, Ga., December 21.—[Special.]—
The election for county officers passed off quietly Friday. All contestants had warm supporters, and telling licks were put in on all sides. The sheriff's office was made the main fight, but in spite of hard work, the present incumbent was re-elected by a small majority. The returns at present show a majority for I. J. Fountain, sheriff; H. D. Hughes, clerk; W. W. Poole, tax receiver; J. F. Billee, tax collector; G. R. Butler, county treasurer; R. D. McCullar, coroner, and J. T. Brannan, surveyor. The old board of county commissionars was re-elected.

influence is widening and deepening every year and it is an encouraging sign to note such a meeting being held in the state's de-partment of education, for while Georgia has never taken much active interest in the nent, it is still one worthy the consideration of her people. This great circle has members all over the United States, in Canada, England, India, Japan, and even in South Africa. While the ovement in Georgia has been of slow growth, it is progressing, for only last week the legislature, by resolution, united with the Georgia chautauqua in sending an invitation to ex-President Cleveland to attend the next session of that assembly

Friday night was the regular time for the election of officers. Dr. William Abram Love in retiring from the president's chair tendered his thanks to the league for the compliment the league had paid him and for the patience which they had exercised, while he himself felt that his busy life had prevented him from doing much he could have wished to do for the cause. Upon his suggestion the league amended its constitution so that the might elect a corps of honorary members, and thus enlist many who are so situated that they cannot become regular workers or readers. The new officers of the league are:

Before adjourning the league tendered Judge Hook a most cordial vote of thanks for the use of his rooms, and it was well for the meeting to have been held there, for the time will come when the state school commissioner's office will be the great educational Mecca of Georgia. A FIJI ISLANDER

TELLS WONDERFUL STORIES IN WAYNESBORO.

He Helped Himself to the Raw Meat of Twenty-One Preachers in as Many Days-About Cannibalism.

WAYNESBORO, Ga., December 21.-[Special. |- The general curiosity of our entire used by the appearance upon the streets of a native of India, who was born upon one of the group of Fiji islands. He wore a very red or cardinal colored suit of clothes knee pants and jacket trimmed with black velvet, collar and cuffs. Over his shoulder he carried a cloak that was tied over the left shoulder and under the right, made of white and red flannel. His head was covered with a blouse that fell down his back, and still over this a sombrero. His shoes were tied under the instep with a one-half inch white braid that wound around the leg up to the knees. His general appearance was very gaudy. WHO HE IS.

This native was converted when twenty-three years old, and he is now seventy-four years of age. His father lived to be 103, and his grandfather 130 years of age. His life has been spent in lecturing on the condition of his people. He speaks twenty lan-guages fluently, and will lecture here again Monday night. When five or six years old he saw an Indian woman throw her child to a crocodile that weighed over 1,000 pounds. The animal missed the child and the mother caught it as it ran back to her begging for its life, when she caught it and threw it again; this time the crocodile struck it with its claws and tore it into two pieces, and ate it very quickly. She then reported her acts to the pagan priest, and he blessed her, saying to her: "Go and sin no more."

EATING HUMAN FLESH. He also was a cannibal. When he was seven years old there were twenty-one ministers, who were caught while traveling and prospecting for places to locate churches, and one of these ministers was beheaded every morning by their high priest, and his flesh cooked, and the natives were made to stand in a row and each one was given a part of the flesh, and they stood and ate it. This was continued every day for twenty-one days until all of the ministers were eaten up, and he ate a part of twentyone preachers.

He says the natives never do eat one another unless he be taken in war or as a missionary. That it is a mistaken idea that they slav one another to eat when this man and that is fat enough to eat. That the beasts of the field never slay one of their kind to prey upon, and that the savages have never gotten to be lower than wild ani-

A MEMORY OF CALCUTTA. This man says he remembers when Calcutta had only 60,000 inhabitants, and now she has nearly 500,000. Being a member of the Episcopal church of England, he is extravagant in his showers of praises upon the English government for their civilizing work among his people, and being a preacher he loves to tell the Christain effect upon his people and how his heart goes out to all efforts made to civilize his poor heathen brethern. A mechanic commands $5 to $10 per day there, and he knows of a lady there from the city of Indianapolis who receives $100 every month for teaching, and that there is a great demand for more of these teachers. He has one of the native women with him, and will command a large audience here on Monday night.

TABERNACLE PULPIT. DR. TALMAGE PREACHES TWICE

Taking as His Text "The Waters of Merom"-A Night Encampment in Palestin Sketches from the Holy Land.

BROOKLYN, December 21 .- [Special.]-Dr. Talmage preached the following sermon this morning in the Academy of Music in this city, and again in the evennig in New York. His text was Joshua XI: 5: "And when all these kings were met together, they came and pitched together at the waters of Merom to

We are encamped tonight in Palestine by the waters of Merom. After a long march we have found our tents pitched, our fires kindled, and though far away from civilization, a vanety of food that would not compromise a first-class American hotel, for the most of our caravan starts an hour and a half earlier in the morning. We detain only two mules carrying so much of our baggage as we might accidentally need, and a tent for the noonday luncheon. The malarias around this Lake Merom are so poisonous that at any other season of the year encampment here is perilous, but this winter night the air is tonic and healthful. In this neighborhood Joshua fought his last great battle. The nations had banded themselves together to crush this Joshua, but along the banks of these waters Joshua left their carcasses. Indeed, it is time that we more minutely examine this Joshua of whom we have in these discourses caught only a momentary glimpse, although he crossed and recrossed Palestine, and next to Jesus is the most stirring and mighty character whose foot ever touched the Holy Land. Moses was dead. A beautiful tradition says the Lord kissed him, and in that act drew forth the soul of the dying lawgiver. He had been buried, only one person at the funeral, the same one who kissed him. But God never takes a man away from any place of useful-ness but he has some one ready. The Lord loes not go looking around amid a great variety of candidates to find some one especially fitted for the vacated position. He makes a man for that place. Moses has passed off the stage, and Joshua, the hero, puts his foot on the platform of history so solidly that all the ages echo with the tread. He was a magnificent fighter, but he always fought on the right side, and he never fought unless God the right side, and he never fought unless God told him to fight. He got his military equipment from God, who gave him the promise at the start: "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life." God fulfilled this promise, although Joshua's first battle was with the spring freshet; and the next with a stone wall; and the next, leading on a regiment of whipped cowards; and the next battle, against darkness, wheeling the sun and the moon into spring freshet; and the next with a stone wall; and the next, leading on a regiment of whipped cowards; and the next battle, against darkness, wheeling the sun and the moon into his battalion, and the last, against the king of terrors, death—five great victories.

For the most part, when the general of an army starts out in a conflict he would like to have a small battle in order that he may get his courage up and he may rally his troops and get them drilled for greater conflicts; but this first undertaking of Joshua was greater than the levelling of Fort Pulaski, or the thundering down of Gibralta, or the overthrow of the Bastile. It was the crossing of the Jordan at the time of the spring freshet. The snows of Mount Lebanon had just been melting, and they poured down into the valley, and the whole valley was a raging torrent. So the Canaanites stand on one bank and they look across and see Joshua and the Israehites, and they laugh and say: "Aha! aha! they cannot disturb us in time—until the freshest fall; it is impossible for them to reach us." But after a while they look across the water and they see a movement in the army of Joshua. They say: "What's the matter now? Why, there must be a panic among these troops, and they are going to fly, or perhaps they are going to try to march across the river Jordan. Joshua is a lunatic." But Joshua, the chieftain, looks at his army and cries: "Forward, march!" and they start for the bank of the Jordan.

One mile ahead go two priests carrying a glittering box four feet long and two feet wide. It is the ark of the covenant. And they come down, and no sooner do they just touch the rim of the water with their feet, than by an almighty fiat, Jordan parts. The army of Joshua marches right on without getting their feet wet, over the bottom of the river, a path of chalk and broken shells and pebbles, until they got to the other bank. Then they lay hold of the oleanders and tamarisks and willows and pull themselves up a bank thirty or forty feet high, and having gamed the other forty feet high, and having gained the other bank, they clap their shields and their cymbals, and sing the praises of the God of Joshua. But no sconer have they reached the bank than the waters begin to dash and roar, and

But no sooner have they reached the bank than the waters begin to dash and roar, and with a terrific rush they break loose from their strange anchorage. Out yonder they have stopped, thirty miles of distance they halted. On this side the waters roll off toward the salt sea. But as the hand of the Lord God is taken away from the thus uplifted waters—waters perhaps uplifted half a mile—as the almighty hand is taken away, those waters—ush down, and some of the unbelieving Isra—ay:

"Alas, alas, what a misfortune! Win, uld not those waters have stayed parted?" Because perhaps we may want to go back. O Lord, we are engaged in a risky business. Those Canaanites may eat us up. How if we want to go back? Would it not have been a more complete miracle if the Lord had parted the waters to let us come through, and kept them parted to let us go back if we are defeated?" My friends, God makes no provision for a Christain's retreat. He clears the path all the way to Canaan. To go back is to die. The same getekeepers that swing back the amethystine and crystalline gate of the Jordan to let Israel pass through now swing shut the amethys ine and crystalline gate of the amethystine and crystalline gate of the Jordan to let Israel pass through now swing shut the amethys ine and crystalline gate of the Jordan to keep the Israelites from going back. I declare it in your hearing today, victory ahead, water thirty feet deep in the rear. Triumph ahead, Canaan ahead; behind you death and darkness and woe and hell. But you say: "Why didn't those Canaanites, when they had such a splendid chance—standing on the top of the bank thirty or forty feet high, completely demolish those poor Israelites down in the river?" I will tell you why. God had made a promise and he was going to keep it. "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life."

But this is no place for the host to stop. Joshua gives the command, "Forward, march!" In the distance there is a long grove of trees, and at the end of the grove is a city. It is a city of arbors, a city with walls seeming to reach to the heaven, to buttress the very sky. It is the great metropolis that commands the mountain pass. It is Jericho. That city was afterward captured by Pompey, and it was afterward captured by the Mohammedans; but this campaign the Lord plans. There shall be no swords, no shields, no battering ram. There shall be only one weapon of war, and that a ram's horn. The horn of the slain ram was sometimes taken and holes were punctured in it, and then the musician rould put the instrument to his lips, and he would run his fingers over this rude musical instrument, and make a great deal of sweet harmony for the people. That was the only kind of weapon. Seven priests were to take these rude, rustic musical instruments, and they were to go around the city every day for six days—one a day o were to go around the city every day for six days—once a day for six days,—once a day for six days, and then on the seventh day they were to go around blowing these rude musical instruments seven times, and then at the close of the seventh blowing of the rams' horns on the seventh day, the pateration of the whole seene was to be a shout at which they great walls should tumble peteration of the whole scene was to be a should at which those great walls should tumble from capstone to base.

The seven priests with the rude musical instruments, pass all around the city walls on the first day, and a failure. Not so much as a piece of plaster broke loose from the wall—not so much as a loosened rock, not so much as a piece of mortar lost from its place. "There," sag the unbelieving Israelites, "didn't I tell you so? Why, those ministers are fools. The idea of going around the city with those musical instruments and expecting in that way to wall. Why, it is not philosophic. Don't yon see there is no relation between the blowing of these musical instruments and the knocking down of the wall? It isn't philosophy."

And I suppose there were many wiseacres who stood with their brows knitted, and with the forefinger of the right hand to the forefinger of the left hand, arguing it all out, and showing it was not possible that such a cause could produce such an effect. And I suppose in the encanpment that night there was plenty of philosophy and caricature, and if Joshua had been nominated for any high military position, he would not have gotten many votes.

Joshua's stock was down. The second day, the priests blowing the musical instruments go around the city, and a failure: Third day, and a failure; ifth day, and a failure inth day, and a failure inth day, and a failure; ifth day, and a failure into the city, and a failure; fith day, and a failure into the city, and a failure. There is only one more thing to do, and that is to utter a great shout. I see the Israelitish army straightening themselves up, filling their lungs for a vociferation such as was never heard before and never heard after. Joshua feels that the hour has come, and he cries out to his host: "Shout; for the Lord hath given you the city!" All the people begin to cry: "Down, Jericho, down Jericho!" and the long line of solid masonry begins to quiver and to move and to rock. Stand from under! She falls! Crash! go the walls, the temples, the towers, the palaces; the air blackened with the dust. The huzza of the victorious Israelites and the groan of the conquered Canaanites commingle, and Joshua standing there in the debris of the wall, hears a voice saying: "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life."

Only one house spared. Who lives there? Some great king? No. Sone woman distinguished for great kindly deeds? No. She had been conspicuous for her crimes. It is the house of Rahab. Why was her house spared? Because she had been a great sinner? No, but be

When wrapt in fire the realms of ether glow, And heaven's last thunder shakes the earth below:
Thou undismayed shalt o'er the ruins smile,
And light thy torch at nature's funeral pile.

But Joshua's troops may not halt here. The command is: "Forward, march!" There is the city of Ai; it must be taken. How shall it be taken? A scouting party comes back and says: "Joshua, we can do that without you; it is going to be a very easy job; you just stay here while we go and capture it." They march with a small regiment in front of that city. The men of Ai look at them and give one yell, and the Israelites run like reindeer. The northern troops at Bull Rundid not make such rapid time as these Israelites with the Canaanites after them. They never cut such a sorry figure as when they were on the retreat. Anybody that goes out in the battles of God with only half a force, instead of your taking the men of Ai, the men of Ai will take you. Look at the church of God on the retreat. The Bornesian cannibals ate up Munson, the missionary. "Fall back!" said a great many Christian people—"Fall back, O church of God! Borneo will never be taken. Don't you see the Bornesian cannibals have eaten up Munson, the missionary?" Tyndall delivers his lecture at the University of Glasgow, and a great many good people say: "Fall back, O church of God! Don't you see that Christian philosophy is going to be overcome by worldly philosophy? Fall back." Geology plunges its crowbar into the mountains, and there are a great many people who say: "Scientific investigation is going to overthrow the Mosaic account of the creation. Fall back!" Friends of the church have never had any right to fall back.

Joshua falls on his face in chagrin. It is his troops around him and he says: "Now, let us go up and capture the city of Ai; let us go up right away."

They march on. He puts the majority of the troops behind a ledge of rocks in the night, and then he sends comparatively small regiments up in front of the city. The men of Ai come out with a shout. The small regiments of Israelites in strategem fall back and fall back, and when all the men of Ai have left the city and are in pursuit of these scattered, or seemingly scattered regiments, Joshua stands on a rock—I see his locks flying in the wind as he points his spear toward the doomed city, and that is the signal. The men rush out from behind the rocks and take the city, and it is put to the torch, and then these Israelites in the city march down and the flying regiments of Israelites return, and between these two waves of Israelitish prowess the men of Ai are destroyed, and the Israelites gain the victory; and while I see the curling smoke of that destroyed city on the sky, and while I hear the huzza of the Israelites and the groan of the Canaanites, Joshua hears something louder than it all, ringing and echoing through his soul, "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life."

through his soul, "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life."

But this is no place for the host of Joshua to stop. "Forward, march!" cries Joshua to the troops. There is the city of Gibeon. It has put itself under the protection of Joshua. They sent word, "There are five kings after us; they are going to destroy us; send troops quick; send us help right away." Joshua has a three days' march more than double quick. On the morning of the third day he is before the enemy. There are two long lines of battle. The battle opens with great slaughter, but the Canaanites soon discover something. They say "That is Joshua; that is the man who conquered the spring freshet and knocked down the stone wall and destroyed the city of Al. There is no use fighting." And they sound a retreat, and as they begin to retreat, Joshua and his host spring upon them like a panther, pursuing them over the rocks, and as these Canaanites with sprained ankles and gashed foreheads retreat, the catapults of the sky pour a volley of hailstones into the valley, and all the artillery of the heavens with bullets of iron, pound the Canaanites against the ledges of Beth-horon.

"Oh!" says Joshua, "this is surely a victory." "But do you not see the sun is going down? Those Amorites are going to get away after all, and then they will come up some other time and bother us, and perhaps destroy us." See, the sun is going down. Oh, for a longer day than has ever been seen in this climate! What is the matter with Joshua? as he fallen in an apoplectic fit? No. He in prayer. Look out when a good man akes the Lord his ally. Joshua raises his e, radiant with prayer, and looks at the escending sun over Gibeon and at the faint crescent of the moon, for you know the queen of the night sometimes will linger around the palaces of the day. Pointing one hand at the descending sun and the other hand at the faint crescent of the moon, in the name of the God of the church have never had any right to tall back.

Joshua falls on his face in chagrin. It is the only time you ever see the back of his head. He falls on his face and begins to whine, and he says, "Oh, Lord God, wherefore hast thou at all brought this people over Jordan to deliver us into the hand of the Amorites, to destroy us? Would to God we had been content and dwelt on the other side of Jordan! For the Canaanites and all the inhabitants of the land shall hear of it, and shall environ us round and cut off our name from the earth."

I am very glad Joshua said that. Before, it seemed as if he were a supernatural being, and encouraged when I hear this cry of Joshua as he lies in the dust.

I am very glad Joshua said that. Before, it seemed as if he were a supernatural being, and therefore could not be an example to us; but I find he is a man, he is only a man. Just as sometimes you find a man under severe opposition, or in a bad state of physical health, or worn out with overwork, lying down, and sighing about everything being defeated. I am encouraged when I hear this cry of Joshua as he lies in the dust.

God comes and rouses him. How does he rouse him? By complimentary apostrophe? No. He says, "Get thee up. Wherefore liest thou upon thy face?" Joshua rises, and I warrant you with a mortified look. But his old courage comes back. The fact was, that was not his battle. If he had been in it he would have gone on to victory. He gathers his troops around him and he says: "Now, let us go up and capture the city of Ai; let us go up right away."

Atlanta, Sa., DECEMBER 20th, 1890.

MESSRS. JAS. P. HARRISON & CO.:

Gentlemen—You must permit me to express to you my appreciation of the manner in which you published for me "Van Epps' Index-Digest of Georgia Reports." The paper, the typographical execution, the binding, is equal to the best work of the great law-book publishing houses. The spirit of courtesy, honesty and fair dealing on your part, throughout the entire transaction, in turning out this big job, has given me great satisfaction. I can cordially commend your house to my friends for good work and fair dealing. Sincerely yours, who shaped the worlds and moves the worlds, he cries: "Sun, stand thou still upon Gibeon; and thou moon, in the valley of Ajalon." They halted. Whether it was by refraction of They halted. Whether it was by refraction of the sun's rays, or by the stopping of the whole planetary system, I do not know, and do not care. I leave it to the Christian scientists and the infidel scientists to settle that question, while I tell you I have seen the same thing. "What!" say you; "not the sun standing still?" Yes. The same miracle is performed nowadays. The wicked do not live out half their day, and the sun sets at noon. But let a man start out in battle for God and the truth, and against sin, and the day of his usefulness is prolonged and prolonged.

John Summerfield was a consumptive Methodist. He looked fearfully white, I am told, as he stood in the old Sands street church, in Brooklyn, preaching Christ, and when he stood on the anniversary platform in New York, pleading for the Bible, until unusual and unknown glories rolled forth from that book. When he was dying, his pillow was brushed with the wings of the angel from the skies, the messenger that God sent down. Did John Summerfield's aun set? Did John Summerfield's day end? Oh, no. He lives on in his burning utterances in behalf of the Christian church.

Robert McCheyne was a consumptive Presbyterian. It was said when he preached, he coughed so it seemed as if he would never preach again. His name is fragrant in all Christendom, that name mightier today than was ever his living presence. He lived to preach the gospel in Aberdeen, Edinburgh and Dundee, but he went away very early. He preached himself into the grave. Has Robert McCheyne's sun set? Is Robert McCheyne's day ended? Oh, no! His dying delirium was filled with prayer, and when he lifted his hand to pronounce the benediction upon his family, and the benediction die now; I want to live on and on. I want to start an influence for the church that will never cease. I am only thirty years of age. Sun of my Christian ministry, stand still over Scotland.

influence for the church that will never cease. I am only thirty years of age. Sun of my Christian ministry, stand still over Scotland." And it stood still.

A long time ago there was a Christian woman very consecrated, and she had a drunken husband, and so on came the night of domestic trouble. She lost her children, and drunken husband, and so on came the night of domestic trouble. She lost her children, and there came the night of bereavement. She was very ill, and there came the night of sickness. Her soul departed, and there came the night of sickness. Her soul departed, and there came have night of death. But all these nights of trouble, and darkness, and sorrow, and sickness were illumined by the grace of the gospel; and people came many miles to see how cheerfully a Christian could be sick and how cheerfully a Christian could die. The moon that illumined that night of trouble was a reflection from the sun of rigteousness. In the last hour of that night—that night of darkness and sickness and misfortune, as she lifted her hand toward heaven, those who stood nearest her pillow could hear the whisper—for she wanted to live on in the generations that were to follow, conscerated to God; she wanted to have an influence long after she entered upon her eternal rewrrd, and while her hand was lifted and her lips were moving, those who stood nearest her pillow could hear her say, "Thou moon, stand still in the valley of Ajalon."

But Joshua was not quite through. There was time for five funerals before the sun of that prolonged day set. Who will preach their funeral sermon over Louis XVI. Who will preach the funeral sermon over Louis XVI. Who will preach the funeral sermon of those five dead kings, king of Jerusalem, king of Hebron, king of Jamutth, king of Lachish, king of Eglon? Let it be by Joshua. What is his text? What shall be the epitaph put on the door of the tomb? "There shall not any man be able to stand

Jarmuth, king of Lacinsh, king of Egion? Let it be by Joshua. What is his text? What shall be the epitaph put on the door of the tomb? "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life."

But, before you fasten up the door, I want five more kings beheaded and thrust in: King Alcohol, King Fraud, King Lust, King Superstition, King Infidelity. Let them be beheaded and hurl them in. Then fasten up the door forever. What shall the inscription and what shall the epitaph be? For all Christian philanthropists of all ages are going to come and look at it. What shall the inscription be? "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life."

But it is time for Joshua to go home. He is a hundred and ten years old. Washington went down the Potomac and at Mt. Vernon closed his days. Wellington died peacefully at Apsley house. Now, where shall Joshua rest? Why, he is to have his greatest battle now. After 110 years he has to meet a king, who has more subjects than all the present population of the earth, his throne a pyramid of skulls, his parterre the graveyard and the cemeteries of the world, his charlot the world's hearse—the King of Terrors. But if this is Joshua's greatest battle, it is going to be Joshua's greatest victory. He gathers his friends around him and gives his valedictory, and it is full of reminiscence. Young men tell what they are going to do; old men tell what they have done. And as you have heard a grandfather or great-grandfather, seated by the evening fire, tell of Monmouth or Yorktown, and then lift the crutch or staff as though it was a musket, to fight, and show town, and then lift the crutch or star as though it was a musket, to fight, and show how the old battles were won—so Joshua gathers his friends around his dying couch, and he tells them the story of what he has been through, and as he lies there, his white locks snowing down on his wrinkled forehead, I wonder if God has kept his promise all the way through.

locks snowing down on his wrinkied foreneau, I wonder if God has kept his promise all the way through.

As he lies there he tells the story one, two or three times—you have heard old people tell a story two or three times over—and he answers: "I go the way of all the earth, and not one word of the promise has failed, not one word thereof has failed; all has come to pass, not one word thereof has failed." And then he turns to his family, as a dying parent will, and says: "Choose now whom you will serve, the God of Israel or the God of the Amorites. As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." A dying parent cannot be reckless or thoughtless in regard to his children. Consent to part with them forever at the door of the tomb we cannot. By the cradle in which their infancy was rocked, by the bosom on which they first lay, by the blood of the covenant, by the God of Joshua, it shall not be. We will not part, we cannot part. Jehovah Jireh, we take thee at thy promise. "I will be a God to thee and thy seed after thee."

Dead, the old chieftain must be laid out.

Handle him very gently; that sacred body is over a hundred and ten years of age. Lay him out, stretch out those feet that walked dry shod the parted Jordan. Close those lips which helped blow the blast at which the walls of Jericho fell. Fold the arm that lifted the snear toward the deomed city of A.j. Fold the snear toward the deomed city of A.j. Fold. walls of Jericho fell. Fold the arm that litted the spear toward the doomed city of Ai. Fold it right over the heart that exulted when the five kings fell. But where shall we get the burnished granite for the headstone and the footstone? I bethink myself now. I imagine that for the head it shall be the sun that stood

DR. TALMAGE PREACHES TWICE

YESTERDAY, Taking as His Text "The Waters of Merom"-A Night Encampment in Palestine— Sketches from the Holy Land.

BROOKLYN, December 21.—[Special.]—Dr. Talmage preached the following sermon this morning in the Academy of Music in this city, and again in the evennig in New York. His text was Joshua XI: 5: "And when all these kings were met together, they came and pitched together at the waters of Merom to fight against Israel."

We are encamped tonight in Palestine by the waters of Merom. After a long march we have found our tents pitched, our fires kindled, and though far away from civilization, a va-iety of food that would not compromise a arst-class American hotel, for the most of our caravan starts an hour and a half earlier in the morning. We detain only two mules carrying so much of our baggage as we might accidentally need, and a tent for the noonday luncheon. The malarias around this Lake Merom are so poisonous that at any other season of the year encampment here is perilous, but this winter night the air is tonic and healthful. In this neighborhood Joshua fought his last great battle. The nations had banded themselves together to crush this Joshua, but along the banks of these waters Joshua left their carcasses. Indeed, it is time that we more minutely examine this Joshua of whom we have in these discourses caught only a momentary glimpse, although he crossed and recrossed Palestine, and next to Jesus is the most stirring and mighty character whose foot ever touched the Holy Land.

Moses was dead. A beautiful tradition says the Lord kissed him, and in that act drew forth the soul of the dying lawgiver. He had been buried, only one person at the funeral, the same one who kissed him. But God never takes a man away from any place of usefulness but he has some one ready. The Lord does not go looking around amid a great rariety of candidates to find some one especially fitted for the vacated position. He makes a man for that place. Moses has passed off the stage, and Joshua, the hero, puts his foot on the platform of history so solidly that all the ages echo with the tread. He was a magnificent fighter, but he always fought on all the ages echo with the tread. He was a magnificent fighter, but he always fought on the right side, and he never fought unless God told him to fight. He got his military equipment from God, who gave him the promise at the start: "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life." God fulfilled this promise, although Joshua's first battle was with the spring freshet; and the next with a stone wall; and the next, leading on a regiment of whipped cowards; and the next battle, against darkness, wheeling the sun and the moon into his battalion, and the last, against the king of terrors, death—five great victories.

For the most part, when the general of an army starts out in a condict he would like to have a small battle in order that he may get his courage up and he may rally his troops and get them drilled for greater conflicts; but this first undertaking of Joshua was greater than the levelling of Fort Pulaski, or the thundering down of Gibralta, or the overthrow of the Bastile. It was the crossing of the Jordan at the time of the spring freshet. The snows of Mount Lebanon had just been melting, and they poured down into the valley, and the whole valley was a raging torrent. So the Canaanites stand on one bank and they look across and see Joshua and the Israelites, and they laugh and say: "Aha! aha! they cannot disturb us in time—until the freshest fall; it is impossible for them to reach us." But after a while they look across the water and they see a movement in the army of Joshua. They say: "What's the matter now? Why, there must be a panic among these troops, and they are going to fly, or perhaps they are going to try to march across the river Jordan. Joshua is a lunatic." But Joshua, the chieftain, looks at his army and cries: "Forward, march!" and they start for the bank of the Jordan.

One mile ahead go two priests carrying a glittering box four feet long and two feet wide. It is the ark of the covenant. And they come down, and no sooner do they just touch the rin of the wa feet wet, over the bottom of the river, a path of chalk and broken shells and pebbles, until they got to the other bank. Then they lay hold of the oleanders and tamarisks and wilthey got to the other bank. Then they lay hold of the oleanders and tamarisks and willows and pull themselves up a bank thirty or forty feet high, and having gained the other bank, they clap their shields and their cymbals, and sing the praises of the God of Joshua. But no sooner have they reached the bank than the waters begin to dash and roar, and with a terrific rush they break loose from their strange anchorage. Out yonder they have stopped, thirty miles of distance they halted. On this side the waters roll off toward the salt sea. But as the hand of the Lord God is taken away from the thus uplifted waters—waters perhaps uplifted half a mile—as the almighty hand is taken away, those waters rush down, and some of the unbelieving Israelites say: "Alas, alas, what a misfortune! Why could not those waters have stayed parted? Because perhaps we may want to go back. O Lord, we are engaged in a risky business. Those Canaanites may eat us up. How if we want to go back? Would it not have been a more complete miracle if the Lord had parted the waters to let us come through, and kept them parted to let us come through, and kept them parted to let us come through, and kept them parted to let us come through, and kept them parted to let us come through, and kept them parted to let us come through, and kept them parted to let us come through, and kept them parted to let us come through, and kept them parted to let us come through, and kept them parted to let us cohe through, and kept them parted to let us cohe through, and kept them parted to let us cohe through, and kept them parted to let us cohe through, and kept them parted to let us cohe through, and kept them parted to let us cohe through, and kept them parted to let us cohe through, and kept them parted to let us cohe through. the waters to let us come through, and kept them parted to let us go back if we are de-feated?" My friends, God makes no provis-ion for a Christain's retreat. He clears the path all the way to Canaan. To go back is to die. path all the way to Canaan. To go back is to die. The same getekeepers that swing back the amethystine and crystalline gate of the Jordan to let Israel pass through now swing shut the amethys ine and crystalline gate of the Jordan to keep the Israelites from going back. I declare it in your hearing today, victory ahead, water thirty feet deep in the rear. Triumph ahead, Canaan ahead; behind you death and darkness and woe and hell. But you say: "Why didn't those Canaanites, when they had such a splendid chance—standing on the top of the bank thirty or forty feet high; completely demolish those poor Israelites down in the river?" I will tell you why. God had made a promise and he was going to keep it. "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life."

But this is no place for the host to stop. Joshua gives the command, "Forward, march!" In the distance there is a long grove of trees, and at the end of the grove is a city. It is a city of arbors, a city with walls seeming to reach to the heaven, to buttress the very sky. It is the great metropolis that commands the mountain pass. It is Jericho. That city was afterward captured by Pompey, and it was afterward captured by Herod the Great, and it was afterward captured by the Mohammedans; but this campaign the Lord plans. There shall be no swords, no shields, no battering ram. There shall be only one weapon of war, and that a ram's horn. The horn of the slain ram was sometimes taken and holes were punctured in it, and then the musician yould put the instrument to his lips, and he would run his fingers over this rude musical instrument, and make a great deal of sweet harmony for the people. That was the only kind of weapon. Seven priests were to take these rude, rustic musical instruments, and they were to go around the city every day for six days—once a day for six days, and then on the seventh day they were to go around blowing these rude musical instruments seven times, and then at the close of the seventh blowing of the rams' horns on the seventh day, the pateration of the whole scene was to be a shout at which those great walls should tumble from capstone to base.

The seven priests with the rude musical instruments, pass all around the city walls on the first day, and a failure. Not so much as a wall. Why, it is not philosophic. Don't you see there is no relation between the blowing of these musical instruments and the knocking down of the wall? It isn't philosophy. And I suppose there were many wiseaers who stood with their brows knitted, and with the forefinger of the right hand to the forefinger of the left hand, arguing it all out, and showing it was not possible that such a cause could produce such an effect. And I suppose in the encampment that night there was plenty of philosophy and caricature, and if Joshua had been nominated for any high military position, he would not have gotten many votes. Joshua's stock was down. The second day, the priests blowing the musical instruments go around the city, and a failure. Third day, and a failure; fifth day, and a failure; iswth day, and a failure. The seventh day comes, the climacteric day. Joshua is up early in the morning and examines the troops, walks all around about, looks at the city wall. The priests start to make a circuit of the city. They go all around once, all around twice, three times, four times, five times, six times, seven times, and a failure.

There is only one more thing to do, and that is to utter a great shout. I see the Israelitish army straightening themselves up, filling their lungs for a vociferation such as was never heard before and never heard after. Joshua feels that the hour has come, and he cries out to his host: "Shout; for the Lord hath given you the city!" All the people begin to cry: "Down, Jericho, down Jericho!" and the long line of solid masonry begins to quiver and to move and to rock. Stand from under! She falls! Crash! go the walls, the temples, the towers, the palaces; the air blackened with the dust. The huzza of the victorious Israelites and the groan of the conquered Canaanites commingle, and Joshua standing there in the debris of the wall heave a voice saving.

towers, the palaces; the air blackened with the dust. The huzza of the victorious Israelites and the groan of the conquered Camanites commingle, and Joshua standing there in the debris of the wall, hears a voice saying: "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life."
Only one house spared. Who lives there? Some great kind? No. Some woman distinguished for great kindly deeds? No. She had been conspicuous for her crimes. It is the house of Rahab. Why was her house spared? Because she had been a great sinner? No, but because she repented, demonstrating to all the ages that there is mercy for the chief of sinners. The red cord of divine injunction reaching from her window to the ground, so that when the people saw that red cord they knew it was the divine indication they should not disturb the premises, making us think of the divine cord of a Savior's deliverance, the red cord of a Savior's kindness, the red cord of a Savior's mercy, the red cord of our rescue. Mercy for the chief of sinners. Put your trust in that God, and no damage shall befall you. When our world shall be more terribly surrounded than was Jericho, even by the trumpets of the judgment day, and the hills and the mountains, the metal bones and ribs of nature, shall break, they who have had Rahab's faith shall have Rahab's deliverance.

When wrapt in fire the realms of ether glow, And heaven's last funder shakes the earth

Thou undismayed shalt o'er the ruins smile,
And light thy torch at nature's funeral pile.

But Joshua's troops may not halt here. The command is: "Forward, march!" There is the city of Ai; it must be taken. How shall it be taken? A scouting party comes back and says: "Joshua, we can do that without you; it is going to be a very easy job; you just stay here while we go and capture it." They march with a small regiment in front of that city.
The men of Ai look at them and give one yell, and the Israelites run like reindeer. The northern troops at Bull Rundid not make such rapid time as these Israelites with the Canaanites after them. They never cut such a sorry figure as when they were on the retreat. Anybody that goes out in the battles of God with only half a force, instead of your taking the men of Ai, the men of Ai will take you. Look at the church of God on the retreat. The Bornesian cannibals ate up Munson, the missionary. "Fall back!" said a great many Christian people—"Fall back, O church of God! Borneo will never be taken. Don't you see the Bornesian cannibals have eaten up Munson, the missionary?" Tyndall delivers his lecture at the University of Glasgow, and a great many good people say: "Fall back, O church of God! Don't you see that Christian philosophy? Fall back." Geology plunges its crowbar into the mountains, and there are a great many people who say: "Scientific investigation is going to overthrow the Mosaic account of the creation. Fall back!" Friends of the church have never had any right to fall back.

Joshua falls on his face in chagrin. It is the only time you ever see the back of his head. He falls on his face in chagrin. It is the only time you ever see the back of his head. He falls on his face and begins to whine, and he says, "Oh, Lord God, wherefore hast thou at all brought this people over Jordan to deliver us into the hand of the Amorites, to destroy us? Would to God we had been content and dwelt on the other side of Jordan! For the Canaanites and all the inhabi shall environ us round and cut off our name from the earth."

shall environ us round and cut off our name from the earth."
I am very glad Joshua said that. Before, it seemed as if he were a supernatural being, and therefore could not be an example to us; but I find he is a man, he is only a man. Just as sometimes you find a man under severe opposition, or in a bad state of physical health, or worn out with overwork, lying down, and sighing about everything being defeated. I am encouraged when I hear this cry of Joshua as he lies in the dust.
God comes and rouses him. How does he rouse him? By complimentary apostrophe? No. He says, "Get thee up. Wherefore liest thou upon thy face?" Joshua rises, and I warrant you with a mortified look. But his old courage comes back. The fact was, that was not his battle. If he had been in it he would have gone on to victory. He gathers his troops around him and he says: "Now, let us go up and capture the city of Ai; let us go up right away."

They march on. He puts the majority of the troops behind a ledge of rocks in the night, and then he sends comparatively small regiments up in front of the city. The men of Ai come out with a shout. The small regiments of Israelites in strategem fall back and fall back, and when all the men of Ai have left the city and are in pursuit of these scattered, or seemingly scattered regiments, Joshua stands on a rock—I see his locks flying in the or seemingly scattered regiments, Joshua stands on a rock—I see his locks flying in the wind as he points his spear toward the doomed city, and that is the signal. The men rush out from behind the rocks and take the city, and it is put to the torch, and then these Israelites in the city march down and the fly-Israelites in the city march down and the flying regiments of Israelites return, and between these two waves of Israelitish prowess the men of Ai are destroyed, and the Israelites gain the victory; and while I see the curling smoke of that destroyed city on the sky, and while I hear the huzza of the Israelites and the groan of the Canaanites, Joshua hears something louder than it all, ringing and echoing through his soul, "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life."

But this is no place for the host of Joshua to

through his soul, "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life."

But this is no place for the host of Joshua to stop. "Forward, march!" cries Joshua to the troops. There is the city of Gibeon. It has put itself under the protection of Joshua. They sent word, "There are five kings after us; they are going to destroy us; send troops quick; send us help right away." Joshua has a three days' march more than double quick. On the morning of the third day he is before the enemy. There are two long lines of battle. The battle opens with great slaughter, but the Canaanites soon discover something. They say "That is Joshua; that is the man who conquered the spring freshet and knocked down the stone wall and destroyed the city of Ai. There is no use fighting." And they sound a retreat, and as they begin to retreat, Joshua and his host spring upon them like a panther, pursuing them over the rocks, and as these Canaanites with sprained ankles and gashed foreheads retreat, the catapuits of the sky pour a volley of hailstones into the valley, and all the artillery of the heavens with bullets of iron, pound the Canaanites against the ledges of Beth-horon.

"Oh!" says Joshua, "this is surely a victory." "But do you not see the sun is going down? Those Amorites are going to get away after all, and then they will come up some other time and bother us, and perhaps destroy us." See, the sun is going down. Oh, for a longer day than has ever been seen in this climate! What is the matter with Joshua? as he fallen in an apoplectic fit? No. He in prayer. Look out when a good man akes the Lord his ally. Joshua raises his e, radiant with prayer, and looks at the escending sun over Gibeon and at the faint crescent of the moon, for you know the queen of the night sometimes will linger around the palaces of the day. Pointing one hand at the faint crescent of the moon, in the name of the God

MESSRS. JAS. P. HARRISON & CO.:

GENTLEMEN—You must permit me to express to you my appreciation of the manner in which you published for me "Van Epps' Index-Digest of Georgia Reports." The paper, the typographical execution, the binding, is equal to the best work of the great law-book publishing houses. The spirit of courtesy, honesty and fair dealing on your part, throughout the entire transaction, in turning out this big job, has given me great satisfaction. who shaped the worlds and moves the worlds, who snaped the worlds and moves the worlds, he cries: "Sun, stand thou still upon Gibeon; and thou moon, in the valley of Ajalon." They halted. Whether it was by refraction of the sun's rays, or by the stopping of the whole planetary system, I do not know, and do not care. I leave it to the Christian scientists and the infidel scientists to settle that question, while I tell you I have seen the same thing. while I tell you I have seen the same thing.
"What!" say you; "not the sun standing still?" Yes. The same miracle is performed nowadays. The wicked do not live out half their day, and the sun sets at noon. But let a man start out in battle for God and the truth, and expirate sin and the day of his negatives.

John Summerfield was a consumptive Methodist. He looked fearfully white, I am told, as he stood in the old Sands street church, in Brooklyn, preaching Christ, and when he stood on the anniversary platform in New York, pleading for the Bible, until unusual and unknown glories rolled forth from that book. When he was dying, his pillow was brushed with the wings of the angel from the skies, the messenger that God sent down. Did John Summerfield's day end? Oh, no. He lives on in his burning utterances in behalf of the Christian church.

on in his burning utterances in behalf of the Christian church.

Robert McCheyne was a consumptive Presbyterian. It was said when he preached, he coughed so it seemed as if he would never preach again. His name is fragrant in all Christendom, that name mightier today than was ever his living presence. He lived to preach the gospel in Aberdeen, Edinburgh and Dundee, but he went away very early. He preached himself into the grave. Has Robert McCheyne's sun set? Is Robert McCheyne's day ended? Oh, no! His dying delirium was filled with prayer, and when he lifted his hand to pronounce the benediction upon his family, and the benediction upon his country, he seemed to say: "I cannot die now; I want to live on and on. I want to start an influence for the church that will never cease. I am only thirty years of age. Sun of my Christian ministry, stand still over Scotland."

A long time age, there was a Christian.

Christian ministry, stand still over Scotland."
And it stood still.

A long time ago there was a Christian woman very consecrated, and she had a drunken husband, and so on came the night of domestic trouble. She lost her children, and there came the night of bereavement. She was very ill, and there came the night of sickness. Her soul departed, and there came also night of death. But all these nights of trouble, and darkness, and sorrow, and sickness were illumined by the grace of the gospel; and people came many miles to see how cheerfully a Christian could be sick and how cheerfully a Christian could be sick and how cheerfully a Christian could be sick and how cheerfully a Christian could die. The moon that illumined that night of trouble was a reflection from the sun of rigteousness. In the last hour of that night—that night of darkness and sickness and misfortune, as she lifted her hand toward heaven, those who stood nearest her pillow could hear the whisper—for she wanted to live on in the generations that were to follow, consecrated to God; she wanted to have an influence long after she entered upon her ternal reword and while her hand was lifted and her secrated to God; she wanted to have an influence long after she entered upon her eternal rewrrd, and while her hand was lifted and her lips were moving, those who stood nearest her pillow could hear her say, "Thou moon, stand still in the valley of Ajalon."

But Joshua was not quite through. There was time for five funerals before the sun of that prolonged day set. Who will preach their funeral sermon? Massillon preached the funeral sermon of those five dead kings, king of Jerusalem, king of Hebron, king of Jarmuth, king of Lachish, king of Eglon? Let it be by Joshua. What is his text? What shall be the epitaph put on the door of the tomb? "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life."

But, before you fasten up the door, I want five before thee all the days of thy life."

But, before you fasten up the door, I want five more kings beheaded and thrustin: King Alcohol, King Fraud, King Lust, King Superstition, King Infidelity. Let them be beheaded and hurl them in. Then fasten up the door forever. What shall the inscription and what shall the epitaph be? For all Christian philanthropists of all ages are going to come and look at it. What shall the inscription be? "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee at it. What shall the inscription be? "Here shall not any man be able to stand before thee ail the days of thy life."

But it is time for Joshua to go home. He is a hundred and ten years old. Washington went down the Potomac and at Mt. Vernon closed his days. Wellington died peacefully at Apsley house. Now, where shall Joshua rest? Why, he is to have his greatest battle now. After 110 years he has to meet a king, who has more subjects than all the present population of the earth, his throne a pyramid of skulls, his parterre the graveyard and the cemeteries of the world, his charlot the world's hearse—the King of Terrors. But if this is Joshua's greatest battle, it is going to be Joshua's greatest victory. He gathers his friends around him and gives his valedictory, and it is full of reminiscence. Young men tell what they are going to do; old men tell what they have done. And as you have heard a grandfather or great-grandfather, seated by the evening fire, tell of Monmouth or York the evening fire, tell of Monmouth or York the evening are, ten of Monmouth of York-town, and then lift the crutch or staff as though it was a musket, to fight, and show how the old battles were wom—so Joshua gathers his friends around his dying couch, and he tells them the story of what he has been through, and as he lies there, his white locks snowing down on his wrinkled forehead, I wonder if God has kept his promise all the locks snowing down on his wrinkled forehead, I wonder if God has kept his promise all the way through.

As he lies there he tells the story one, two or three times—you have heard old people tell a story two or three times over—and he answers: "I go the way of all the earth, and not one word of the promise has failed, not one word thereof has failed; all has come to pass, not one word thereof has failed." And then he turns to his family, as a dying parent will, and says: "Choose now whom you will serve, the God of Israel or the God of the Amorites. As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." A dying parent cannot be reckless or thoughtless in regard to his children. Consent to part with them forever at the door of the tomb we cannot. By the cradle in which their infancy was rocked, by the bosom on which they first lay, by the blood of the covenant, by the God of Joshua, it shall not be. We will not part, we cannot part. Jehovah Jireh, we take thee at thy promise. "I will be a God to thee and thy seed after Jehovah Jireh, we take thee at thy promise.

"I will be a God to thee and thy seed after thee."

Dead, the old chieftain must be laid out. Handle him very gently; that sacred body is over a hundred and ten years of age. Lay him out, stretch out those feet that walked dry shod the parted Jordan. Close those lips which helped blow the blast at which the walls of Jericho fell. Fold the arm that lifted the spear toward the doomed city of Ai. Fold it right over the heart that exulted when the five kings fell. But where shall we get the burnished granite for the headstone and the footstone? I bethink myself now. I imagine that for the head it shall be the sun that stood still upon Gibeon, and for the foot, the moon still upon Gibeon, and for the foot, the that stood still in the valley of Ajalon.

Concerning the Currency.

A letter on "The Financial Situation," in another column, is from the pen of one of the brainiest women in Georgia-a lady whose statesmanlike intellect has commanded the admiration of our foremost men in public life,

It must be admitted that some of the points made by our esteemed correspondent, "R. A. F.," are too sound to be successfully controverted. We must not rudely disturb our present financial system until we have carefully considered a substitute, and looked forward to its natural and probable results. The disastrous examples of inflation mentioned will be best judged when we take into consideration the unstable nature of the governments directly responsible for such vast issues of paper money. Undoubtedly notes issued today upon the faith and credit of the people of this republic would be worth more than continental money, assignats and confederate notes in their day and generation. But it is not to be taken for granted that our currency will be expanded by notes issued upon land or products of the soil as a There are other methods of expansion; for instance, it may come through local banks of issue-either the national banks remodeled, or the old state banks revived, working in harmony with the policy of free silver coinage. It will strike the thoughtful reader that "R. A. F." makes a mistake in attributing the present financial depression to any feel-Ing of distrust excited by the proposed reforms advocated by our farmers and emphasized by the results of the last congressional elections. No such cause influenced the London speculators who unloaded their American securities a few weeks ago. The London panic was the result of the collapse in the Argentine Republic, and while American securities had to be sold by English speculators, it is a significant fact that since the fall elections English capital has been more active than ever in seeking investments in the United States, and especially in the south. That does not look like distrust. The fact is, our financial policy was a war measure devised by the money kings of Wall street, and its unjust discriminations have been making the rich grow richer and the poor grow poorer for thirty years. The recent congressional elections showed the determination of the people to reform this vicious system, and it is now conceded by the leading statesmen of both political parties that we must have a better systemone that will meet the wants of this rapidly developing country.

Farmers and Mortgage Sharks. The farmers of Kansas have good reason to feel despondent.

They not only labor under the disadvantage of having bad crops, but they owe $100,-000,000 in mortgage debts. The municipal debt of the state is about the same. So, at 7 per cent, the people of Kansas have to pay $14,000,000 every year on their debts.

Clearly, there must be some relief or the mortgage sharks will swallow the entire state. When men are crowded to the wall they do not allow statutes to stand in their way, and in Kansas there is a growing disposition on the part of the farmers to defend their homes at all hazards. The other day, in Kingman county, John Cassidy's farm was sold under a mortgage foreclosure, and Thomas Guthrie was put in as a tenant. Very soon Guthrie began to receive anonymous letters notifying him that he was one of "the mortgage company's dogs," and would have to move. He paid no attention to the matter, but one night a party of about 100 men called at his house with wagons and moved the family and their effects, despite their protests, to their old home twenty miles distant. Cassidy was then put in possession of his former premises again.

Now if this sort of thing is to go on Kansas will be plunged into a state of anarchy. Something must be done to protect both the farmers and the mortgage companies, with out giving undue advantage to either. We cannot afford in this country to have the agricultural interest wrecked by a gang of shylocks, and on the other hand we cannot afford to have the people taking up arms to resist the laws and the process of the courts. The farmers must have relief in some #### shape.

A Good Beginning. Winter made a good beginning yesterday. December 21st, the shortest day in the year. Blue skies bent lovingly above where waifs of summer bright clouds shifted lazily hither and thither; and the warm winds breathed softly among the crackling branches that seemed to sigh regretfully that they should have parted with their green leaves so soon. Ever and anon people caught themselves half wondering if it were not yet a long time till Christmas, when the eye caught a glimpse of green grass with the golden sunshine falling upon it like a benediction.

But winter is upon us. Not a winter such as is anticipated with dread in less favored climes, but a jolly, nipping atmosphere, with now and then a wandering camp-follower of some western blizzard straggling from the ranks and flinging a dash of sleet or a drift of snow to keep us in remembrance of the season, other than by the falling of the leaf. A season of busy days, with a keen zest for work spiced with a great deal of enjoyment, these two blending deliciously among our warm hearted southern people. By the time these lines are read the toiling thousands of this fair city will be up and doing. The clang of bells, the shrick of es, the roar of machinery, the clash and clatter of opening shutters, and kindred ounds, will give expression to the voice of progress, and the black smoke wreaths curling upward from the tall chimneys can be seen from afar, and the world will know that the people of Atlanta have made a good beginning in unison with the auspicious circumstances under which the winter has begun. In the Shadow of the Scaffold. Sherbrooke, Can., was the scene of tartling sensation the other day. It was Friday morning, and every prepara-ecution, but he did not relish the job, as he had hung Blanchard the previous Friday, and had not recovered from the mental strain. The fatal hour drew near, and the sheriff tion had been made for the hanging of Lamontagne, the murderer of his brother-in-law. Sheriff Webb was in charge of the ex-entered the prisoner's cell to take him to the scaffold. Lamontagne was self-possessed, but the officer was pale and nervous.

Before a word had been spoken Sheriff Webb tottered and fell dead from a sudden attack of heart disease. Then the prisoner's strong nerve failed him, and he fainted away like a weak woman. A few moments later he was carried to the gallows, completely broken down, and the death sentence was executed by a deputy. It is perhaps the only instance on record where a sheriff almost in the act of hanging a prisoner was smitten down, meeting death before the man who was condemned to die. An officer of the law is bound to do his duty, but when it forces him to take the life of his fellow-man it is a terrible strain, and we can readily understand its effect upon Sheriff Webb, whose mind was full of the horrors of Blanchard's hanging a few days before.

Of this number twenty-four had attained the age of fifteen, fourteen their ourteenth year, nine their thirtee were only twelve years of age, and one had not at tained the age of seven. In most of the cases the immediate cause for the act remains a secret, but it is supposed to have been due to exceptional severity on the part of servants or teachers.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

EDITOR CONSTITUTION:-Before our present system (of national banks, with greenbacks, gold and silver certificates, as well as gold and silver soin.) is tampered with by the national congress and a new system is inaugurated, it will be well to consider the dangers that attend the inflation of the currency beyond the coin reserves in the national treasury. Whenever money is issued on land, there are dangers to be guarded against. The continental congress issued paper currency based on land, and it went down to zero in less than three years. The French government issued a large amount of currency, called assignats, based on land, and they lost their purchasing power until, as we are told, $20 would buy no ore than 6 cents worth of anything. The con-derate congress issued paper money by the illion, but the money went down to absolutely nothing in the closing days of the civil war. The Argentine Republic has lately made a similar renture and failed.

The history of the world sustains the statement that coin (gold and silver) is the only safe founda-tion for a money basis. Whenever you leave coin out of the question you are risking your money and credit to do business with paper currency. The continental money based on land, was made legal tender, payable for all debts due the government, at face value, but it would not go. Prices were then fixed on various products, and ntinental bills made a legal tender for the same. but the sharp money lenders refused to handle them. Then the necessaries of life were fixed at a stated value, and the continental money made a le gal tender for the same, but there was nothing stable behind this paper money. The promise of an un-certain government was not a safe basis, and this paper currency was obliged to go to the wall. With only $200,000,000 in circulation at one time still it was worth only 10 cents on the dollar. An able writer says; "Patriots took the money and lost everything, while unscrupulous men refused to take it, and made fortunes." Until General gliug colonies the republic was dying faster, cause of worth less paper money than by Br bullets or bayonets.

When the veritable history of the confederate struggle is written it will be found that we were whipped faster and more surely by the load of less money we were forced t carry, than b Sherman's and Grant's armies. The private oldier's monthly pay wouldn't feed his wife at some a week, therefore he preferred to quit and sometimes went into hiding. There were men enough in the confederacy to have fought 100 pitched battles—in the spring of 1865, but there was not a solitary dollar of genuine money in

LaFavette brought gold and silver to the strug-

We hear a great deal about the wonderful resources of France with her flexible cur-rency. France issued $360,000,000 of assignats, which were a literal mortgage on the confiscated estates of the clergy and nobles. These lands were ordered to be assigned to the holder, at face value on demand, but they only passed at 30 cents on the dollar as currency, with a limited amount in circulation. When the number of assignats were largely increased, we are told they soon reached the minimum and become worthless as a medium of exchange—100 assignat francs worth only 6 cents in gold. If experience avails anything to our people, the country will think long and act carefully in mak-ing violent changes in our financial system. The subtreasury bill is advertised to come before congress in January. Let us devoutly hope the country will then examine into this plan of issuing paper money on wheat, oats, corn, cotton and tobacco, with an eye single to the good of the whole people, and not yield to popular clamor without satisfactory assurances of safety and progress. "Doing well is hard to beat," and we have done well in years gone by.

With the present supply of greenbacks-the gold and silver certificates and national control of the corner and silver certificates and national bank notesdollar at par with gold and silver coin. rency can still be increased, with a coin basis to rest upon, but it will be very different, when per ishable products become the collateral, upon which money is to be issued, by the United States for the s orm.

There is no question at this time that the present panic is owing to a lack of confidence rather than a scarcity of money. Gold and silver will go into retirement as soon as wheat, oats and corn are elevated to the post of honor. The craze will Money can as properly be issued on pig iron and bacon, or live stock, or either of the three named products. It will be then unfair to discriminate against any product that employs labor, and uses capital for its growth or manufacture. Once the gap is let down, where will it

Capital is the most sensitive thing known to the world. It feels the cold wave of distrust sooner than any other barometer. It runs to shelter before the stormcloud gets above the horizon Capital is now waiting to see what this new politi-cal movement means. The agitation and passage cal movement means. The agitation and passe of a subtreasury bill by congress will cause m uncertainty in business than Andrew Jackson's uncertainty in business than Andrew Jackson's venture in the days of long ago. Whatever of good there may be in the measure, will be loaded down to the gunwaies by the distrust and suspicions of those whose business will be affected by it. Therefore London bankers have already disposed of their American securities. Therefore they prefer to invest their money elsewhere. Therefore the gold tide flows across the Atlantic, and we are strained to meet unexpected financial. and we are strained to meet unexpected financial obligations. The experiment is already a costly one. God grapt it may not prove anything more

DISTINGUISHED VISTORS. Colonels J. A. McKenzie and E. T. Manning Spend a Few Hours Here.

Colonel J. A. McKenzie, of Hopkinsville, Ky., and Colonel E. T. Manning, of New Orleans, were in the city for a few hours Saturday morning. Colonel McKenzie is vice president of the world's Columbian exposition and vice president of the executive committee. Colonel Manning is the present city clerk of New Orleans and has large landed interests in Georgia. The two gentlemen were in attendance upon the southwestern immigration convention recently held at Asheville, N. C., and expressed the most interesting views upon the immigration question and the great fair to be held in Chicago in 1893. Said Colonel Mc-Kenzie: "We called upon Governor Northen this morning to urge upon him the necessity of prompt action toward arranging for a Georgia exhibition at the world's fair. The governor received us very cordially. He expressed full recognition of the great importance of such action at once, but informed us that through constitutional inhibition the state could not appropriate money for any purpose except the egitimate expenses of government.

"However, he consented to issue a proclamation to all railroads, manufacturers, merchants, bankers and business men generally doing business within the state limits, calling upon them to arrange for a full representation of the entire resources of the state in the exposition. "In 1876, Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota and Michigan sent exhibits to the value of $5,000,-000 to the Centennial exposition and, as a re sult, the population of each state was increased by 600,000, and their aggregate wealth by $25,000,000. Kansas alone has creased 1,600,000 in population since 1876, and in wealth during the same period $6,000,000.

"Our primary object in taking this trip is to stimulate interest and enthusiasm in the world's fair in the various southern states, as we are confident that immigration to the south will be thereby induced.

We think the ancestors of the people who left here 100 years ago to build up the north-west should come back and do the same thing Notice Solding Control of Colonel McKenzie is a thorough Kentuckian in every respect. For four years he was a member of the Kentucky legislature, for four years secretary of state, and for six years represented his state in the national ho resentatives. He nominated John G. Into the State Treasury, Because Only Little Over Two Hundred Thousand Acres Are Sold.

A letter written yesterday morning by secretary of state, General Phil Cook, to Chairman Huff, of the finance committee, brings out the fact that the state will not derive much from the sale of the Okefenokee swamp as has been generally expected.

simple reason that not so many acres can be sold as were expected to be taken by the purchasers. The act does not specify how many acres are sold, even approximately. The purchasers were to take an indefinite number of acresthe swamp itself, and so much of the out lying land as is still owned by the state. The survey of the swamp and vicinity included 432,000 acres, and and it was expected that p cally this entire tract would be purchas the contract price per acre.

When the survey was filed in the office the secretary of state, General Cook investigated to find if the title to the whole tract was still vested in the state. He found, somewhat to his surprise, that about 200,000 acres of land, bordering upon the swamsp, and included in the survey, been sold long ago by the state, in land lots. So the number of acres to be sold by th state is cut down just that much. Of course the contract is in no way interfered with; the only difference being that the state gets less money for the swamp than has been generally supposed she would get.

From The Atlanta Appeal, Colored Democrat. If any state in the south deserves the enviable title of representative in enterprise among negroes the "empire state of the south" helds a claim. The faulity of the negro's hope of forty acres and a mule after the war was a valuable lesson to him, and that lesson put the Georgia negro to work. The last fiscal report shows that the negro in Georgia owns one million acres of tillable land and two and a half million dollars worth of stock. The principal demands of the Farmers' Alliance—tariff reform and financial reform—have long formed the foundation stones of sound democratic doctrine, and the alliance will find its natural ally in the democratic party, just as it has already found its natural opponent in the republican party. It is well to keep these facts in mind when discussing the political future.

In the ordinary course of events these can be shished up in an hour or less.

Then the conference report on the branch colleges—which has already been accepted by the house—must be acted upon by the senate.

Of course they will concur.

The only matter in sight about which there can be a hitch is that three common school bills of the house, which have common school bills of the house, which liree common school bills of the nodes, which are now in the hands of a senate committee, may be forced to clash.

The authors of all the bills are very anxious that their measures should be sent back by the committee, and allowed to come to a vote. It seems probable that if any one is reported back, in preference to the others, it will be that of Mr. Fleming, of Richmond.

No definite agreement upon the matter has yet been had by the committee.

Mr. Bronson Howard, it is claimed, scontrived to dramatize a story of the war for n without introducing any incident that ght justly wound the sensibilities of either erner or southerner. The narrative of inci-and principal events related are of the bat-id. The hero and heroine are separated by mes of warfare, the heroine being a southern who is in love with a northern officer. The peris true to his flag, true to his love, and, of rse, all ends happily. But before the denou-at the young officer is under suspicion of havg wronged the peace of his commanding gen-al, as there is a villain in the drama who throws ubt upon a woman's honor and stabs his ene-es in the back. But there also is, too, a pain the back. But there also is, too, a vale figure introduced in the movements of a guided young man, who wipes out the stain of youthful crime by a daring deed for his try, which costs him his life. He is the dised son of General Haverbill, and the father ds by the grave, little thinking it is his own who lies upon the bier upon which his tears alling. There are details in "Shenandoah" are said to be most original in design and latic in expressed result. Mr. Howard's diate throughout is described as bright, forcible telling. REV. W. D. ANDERSON. The New Pastor of the First Methodist Church. Rev. W. D. Anderson, the new pastor of the First Methodist church, preached his first sernon to his new flock yesterday.

It was an able and eloquent discourse The church was crowded to overflowing with members of the congregation, expectant to hear the new pastor Dr. Anderson is a fine-looking man, and speaks with an eloquence that is pleasing and

He exhorted his hearers to lay aside the sins that so easily beset them, and admonished them from the text, which says resist not the Holy Spirit.

The congregation was highly pleased with Dr. Anderson's discourse, and under his ministry the church is sure to prosper.

Dr. Anderson comes to Atlanta from Athens where he served four years. He is very well known here, and many of his new congregation are already personal friends
He was a gallant confederate soldier, and bears on his person the honorable scars of battle. One wound which he received almost wholly disabled his right hand. Dr. Anderson has also been a distinguished member of the Georgia legislature. His ministry among the members of the First church is destined to be a happy and successful one.

GRACE CHURCH DEDICATED.

Dr. W. A. Candler at Grace Church-He Dedicates the New Church. Yesterday W. A. Candler, D.D., president of Emory college, preached a most powerful sermon at Grace church, corner of Houston street and Boulevard. The preacher took as his text the at Grace church, corner of Houston street and Boulevard. The preacher took as his text the 1st verse, 7th chapter, First Kings: "But Solomon was building his own house thirteen years," and referred to the latter clause of the 36th verse of the 6th chapter: "So was he seven years in building it, the house of the Lord." The doctor contrasted the interest of Solomon between a house for himself in the building of which he spent thirteen years and only seven years building the great temple ordered by God. He contrasted the difference in the world in doing things for commercial purposes and for religious purposes. Said a town would give $200 for a great educational purpose in its own vicinity and the next week subscribe $30,000 for a railroad. The doctor was exceedingly happy in his exposition of what the world called close times. Said if he should pass down our streets and whisper: "An enterprise that will pay 20 per cent," the bank vaults, with their stuffed drawers, would fly open and money would come streaming from every direction, but if he should pass down proclaiming an investment that will give life eternal, not a door would one. Yet the cast his cent," the bank vaults, with their stuffed drawers, would fly open and money would come streaming from every direction, but if he should pass down proclaiming an investment that will give life eternal, not a door would open. Yet the earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof. He asked when had a businesss question come in opposition to a moral question when the moral question had not been forced to the rear?

We are the richest people on earth, yet we are crying out lay up for a rainy day. He said Solomon had spent thirteen years building a house for himself and his posterity, yet he was hardly cold in his tomb when his kingdom was overthrown and his houses destroyed. So will it be with the man, the city, the state, the nation that forgets God. Said last year the tax returns made by the people of Georgia showed an increase of nearly $40,000,000, yet what per cent of this large sum was set apart to the establishing of Christ's kingdom on the Carth? If we forget God he will take away our property. If we forget him our nation will decay. Our children will measure our example and iniquity will be within our doors; said the nations of the earth are standing with arms outstretened to rescue the gospel, and that God had laid his hands on young men who were willing to go. Yet with all our prosperity the money could not be found to send them. Said Last year $6,000,000 had been donated to endow colleges, but only $400,000 of that amount had been raised by the south. He said we claimed that the yankees didn't whip us during the war, only overpoweredus. If this discrimination in education between the two sections continue, the north will soon whip the south more than when we came home from the army, and then we looked like we were whipped. At the conclusion he dedicated the church, which was presented by the trustees free of debt, after which he took up a collection for Emory college, and raised about $130. Grace church is said to be one of the pretiest churches in the city, is rapidly building up and is ranking with the

Trinity church was crowded yesterday by a deeply interested congregation that listened with marked attention to the eloquent and learned sermon of Rev. Dr. Hammond.

The sevices were interesting and the singing very fine.

Dr. Hammond took his text from Psalms L., 2.

"Out of Zion, the Perfection of Beauty hath God Shied," and the sermon was a masterly effort.

Dr. Hammond has a forceful earnest delivery. and his manner in the pulpit is such that even the slightest point in his sermon is carried to the hearts of his hearers. slightest point in his sermon is carried to the hearts of his hearers.

Just before the sermon began, Mr. W. R. Hammond arcse and stated that the Ladies' Parsonage Aid Society had decided to increase its membership, and requested all those who desired to join to write their names on slips of paper, which were handed around. Many new names were added, and the society will no doubt be able to do more work in the future, owing to the increased number of workers.

At the Hendrix Mission A large congregation filled the Hendrix mission yesterday to hear the first sermon of the new pastor, Rev. W. Dunbar. Mr. Dunbar made a most pleasing impression on his congregation. His sermon was a powerful one and his delivery pleasing and forcible. He has come to Atlanta with a good record as a worker, and it is expected that he will do great good in his new field. At the service last night there were four conversions made.

WEST END NOTES.

The bugle notes of Christmas are already being sounded by the small boys in West End.

"Uncle Jim Harris" goes out to West End for a breath of pure air every day. Uncle Jim has been in bad health for quite a long while, but if he keeps up this practice he may yet live to be a hundred years old.

hundred years old.

The street car service on the Whitehall and West End line grows worse and worse as the days go by. Up to a few weeks ago you could rely pretty certainly on making the trip from Alabama street to West End, and from West End to Alabama street in thirty minutes, but now it frequently takes from forly to forty-eight minutes, and sometimes even longer. The suburban train on the Central railroad is getting a great deal of the patronage formerly enjoyed by the street car company, and so soon as an electric line is operated through the town, it will get the balance. It is to be hoped that the present horse cars will then be able to move along with a little more speed, as the poor mules and horses will have only empty cars to draw.

Badly Hurt .- A white tramp was hurt on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad last night while trying to steal a ride. The acci dent occurred near the shops of the Metropolitan dummy line. His name is not known.

TWO WHITE MEN AND TWO NEGROES ARRESTED ON A SERIOUS CHARGE.

ment at the American Trust and Banking Company.

Forging a check. There are four men under arrest at the station house on that charge.

Two are white men, G. H. Levert and P. G. Kenny and the others are negroes, George Harris and Dock Scandrick.

They were arrested yesterday at the instance of Captain J. W. English, president of the American Trust and Banking Company. The details of the case are quite interesting Levert is a clerk in the real estate office of Captain J. G. Dallas.

Kenny, who has been in this country but two months, is a barkeeper in a Whitehall street saloon, and the negroes, Harris and Scandrick, also work there.

Scandrick, also work there.

Saturday Harris presented a check for $125 at the Gate City National bank. The check was signed by J. G. Dallas and payable to G. H. Levert, whose endorsement it bore. It was drawn on the American Trust and Banking

Harris was referred by the teller of the Gate City bank to the American Trust and Banking Company. When he presented the check, Mr. Charlie Ryan, the teller, said he would have to be identified. That was done by Perdue & Eggleston's porter. The signature was an adroit counterfeit, ter. The signature was an adroit counterfeit, but Mr. Ryan suspected it wasn't genuine, and turned to the signature book to compare. He wasn't satisfied, so he telephoned to Mr. Dallas who repudiated the check.

Meantime Captain English had been questioning the negro. The boy became nervous, began to wobble in his joints, his frame trembled, his knees smote together and finally he sank on the floor in a state of terror. Captain English picked him up and stood him on his feet, but he again sank to the floor, and then the bank porter dragged him into the rear of the building. Harris was arrested. He told about Scandrick's part in the business, and he was also arrested.

found the check on Ivy street, and that P. G. Kenny, the white saloon keeper, had endorsed Levert's name on the back of the paper.

Kenny was arrested. He acknowledged having written the name across the back of the check at Scandrick's request. Kenny is a recent emigrant from Ireland, ignorant of business transactions, and his friends claim for business transactions, and his friends claim for him that when he signed the name he thought he was doing nothing wrong.

After this Captain Dallas's office was visited. Levert, the clerk, then admitted having drawn the check. He said he did it on October 20th last, but that after carrying it in October 20th last, but that after carrying it in his pocket for some time, he lost it and a memorandum book in which he had placed it. Levert says he wrote the check not with any intention of passing it, but at the time he was simply scribbling on some blank checks that were scattered on the desk. Captain Dallas believes this to be the true version of the story, and went on Levert's bond.

Levert was arrested on suspicion, and later in the day Detective Cason took out warrants charging all four of the men with forgery.

THE MURDOCK CASE. The Man Arrested in Cobb County Is Not

Over 200 gallons have been standing for months ripening and developing so as to be better than ever for the coming holiday trade. It must be remembered that perfumes, like wine, ripen and improve with age. Of this cologne can be truthfully said that its popularity increases wherever sold or used. It is lasting, at the same time delicate-in fact, midway between an extract and a cologne, and then the price, $1.25 for a pint, put up in a Caswell glass-stoppered bottle. This is not the only style in which we sell it by any means. Our method of putting it up in many cut glass and plain bottles is largely augmented this year, and we can sell it to you in glass-stoppered fancy pitchers at 25 cents. Just think of it! The bottle s worth more. In cut glass bottles of Baccarat make, in plain bottles, in colored bottles-in fact,

THE GREAT RUSH

CONTINUES AT HOYT & THORN'S, And They Reduce Prices on Fireworks and Christmas Groceries.

The McKinley tariff. As much as we dislike to, we propose commencing Monday to reduce the price on mixed nuts to the low price of 171/2 cents per pound. Now don't miss this. We have the fanciest, large crisp malaga grapes in Atlanta. We will sell oranges cheaper than any house, considering size. We will give you the best fancy French candy, 3 pounds for $1. Plum pudding 35 cents, already prepared for the table; this is an indispensable adjunct to a good Chrismas dinner. We have more of that extra quality mince We have more of that extra quality mines meat in glass jars at $1 and $1.25 per jar. We will sell the best-citron? in Altanta, 25 cents per pound. We reduce the fancy price of London layer raisins to 17½ cents per pound, and 15 cents for large fancy cooking raisins. Lemon and orange peel reduced to 25 cents per pound. We reduce the price on lemon and vanilla extracts from 25 cents to 20 cents. Our store is headquarters for XXX consens. cents. Our store is headquarters for XXXX confectionery sugar, for icing, for candy. It is the only sugar that produces a French style candy. Hallowee dates are reduced from 15 to 10 cents. Seedless raisins from 30 to 25 cents. Fancy Jordan shelled almonds from 75 to 60 cents. These, you know, are holiday prices; avail yourself of them.

If you want some fancy whole tomatoes in cans, come to our store. We also reduce the price on all sizes Christmas tree candles from 60 to 40 cents an sizes Christians free candies from 60 to 40 cents per box. These prices are, in the parlance of the day, snaps. For this week we also reduce the price on all fancy extra heavy syrup, can fruits, such as peaches, pears, plums, apricots, etc., 3 pound cans, to $4.50 per dozen, worth $4.75 per terre in the control of th

Now, don't forget these prices. You will lose money if you do. We will have as many fancy, dry, dressed turkeys and as tine crisp celery as our trade demands. We want to book your order for trade demands. We want to book your order for both. Just think of a retail grocery store selling in one day at retail, and delivering the goods, nearly $3,000. We want to make it $3,500 on the 24th; so come along and help swell the amount. We want it understood, also, that we carry over no fireworks this year. Make your own price; the goods will go. We will sell you 10-ball Roman candles for 60 cents per dozen, after you purchase $1.00 worth of miscellaneous fireworks. Punk Iree to all who buy fireworks from us.

NEWSBOYS' CHRISTMAS CONTRIBUTIONS FOR THE CHRIST-MAS TREE STILL COMING IN.

The Boy Editors Enthusiastic on the Subject-A Contribution from Mrs. Grady-Mr. Moore's Letter.

All the arrangements have been made for the Christmas tree and the Christmas dinner for the newsboys, and suitable halls have been engaged for white and black.

The one will be at Concordia hall and the other at Mystic hall, corner of Butler street and Edgewood avenue. Presents for newsboys continue to come in.

Mrs. Grady writes Mr. Clark Howell that she wishes to contribute $10 to the newsboys' Christmas tree and requests that presents to that amount be purchased at her expense. Mr. Joseph Hirsch also notifies THE CON-STITUTION that he will send something for the Christmas tree. Mr. Clarence Moore, in contributing $5 for the tree, writes as follows:

CLARENCE E. MOORE.

The Christmas tree for newsboys has struck chord in the hearts of all the other boys. The editors of the boys' papers come out in enhusiastic endorsement of the happy enterprise, and all of them offer to receive subcriptions for it.

The Boys' Democrat, a breezy sheet, edited by Eugene P. Thomas and Frank Boland, THE NEWSBOYS' CHRISTMAS.

THE NEWSBOYS' CHRISTMAS.
THE CONSTITUTION has suggested a noble work, which Atlantians should carry out. It is to give Atlanta's newsboys a mammoth Christmas tree. For some years past, have many scores of these urchins had a bright day in the year, among so many windy, rainy, cold, sad ones—Christmas. On that day have the daily papers, assisted by the generous Atlantians, given to the newsboys a feat, in the shape of a royal Christmas dinner. But why not vary it somewhat? True it is, that a full stomach insures a clear head, but since there was never known a newsboy that was not extremely clear-headed, let us make him lighthearted as well this Christ's day coming. Reader, was never known a newsloy that was not extremely clear-headed, let us make him light-hearted as well this Carrist's day coming. Reader, can you not see the picture of a well-lighted, warmly heated room, with perhaps 150 merry (though maybe some may not have coaxed the pinched look away) faced boys looking with eagerness at the beautifully and substantially adorned Christmas tree, that is theirs and theirs alone? Such a picture must melt the heart and open the purse of every one of Atlanta's prosperous citizens. But we believe there is no need of presenting a picture to their imagination; the words, "bless as you have been and would be blessed" are all that is necessary. Send in your contributions either to the Boys' Democrat or THE CONSTITUTION; it will be thankfully received, the more so as it is in such a noble cause. Overcoming Prejudice.

Overcoming Prejudice.

Prejudice is a sad trait of human nature. A person whose mind is bent on bias does himself great injustice. Said a sick man, whose blood seemed on fire from the effects of blood poison, "Lean't help my prejudice; I have tried half a dozen remedies, and they did me no good. I believe all blood purifiers are humbugs." "Do you believe all physicians are humbugs, too?" asked the writer. "Yes, for I have tried three different doctors, and only grew worse under their treatment. I have made up my mind my case is incurable and death inevitable." However, the writer, who was a friend of the suffering individual, at last succeeded in overcoming his prejudice and persuaded him to give Dr. John Bull's Sarsaparilla a trial. He commenced its use with no faith at all, but ommenced its use with no faith at all, but ood effects soon followed, and its continuance brought complete relief. To All Parties Who Contemplate Going to Louisiana or Texas.

The Queen and Crescent route is the shortest, quickest, cheapest and best line to all points west. I do not ask you to look at our map to prove to you that our fine is the shortest. You can take the map of all other lines leading to Texas and you will see that they give us almost an air-line from Atlanta to Fort Worth, Tex., passing through Birmingham, Meridian, Vicksburg and Shreveport, or New Orleans. This line being the shortest, of course it is the quickest, and it being the quickest, you know it is the cheapest, and being the cheapest it is the best line.

Why, just think of this, only two changes of cars Atlanta to Fort Worth, Tex., on all of our regular trains. The Queen and Crescent route makes special low rates to all emigrants moving west. Emigrants going this line are put in first-class conches, baggage checked through to destination. One hundred and fifty pounds of baggage checked free with each whole tickets seventy-five pounds to each half ticket. Agents of this line will meet emigrants at the nearest railroad station with through tickets and through check, and will accompany them to Atlanta and see that they are put on the fast limited train for the west. Parties destring information, such as maps, books and time cards, also county maps of Arkansas and Texas, and all other information, can obtain same by writing to or calling on S. C. Ray, So. East. A REBATE ON TOBACCO Of Two Cents a Pound on Unbroken Packages Containing 250 Pounds or More. A reduction was made in the revenue tax on manufactured tobacco from 8 to 6 cents a pound in the McKinley tariff bill.

But the reducing clause was inadvertantly omitted from the bill when presented to the president for his signature, and he, of course, never detected the mistake, but affixed his little name with a grand flourish.

The mistake was afterward discovered and rectified by congress, the president signing it on December 15th. The rebate will go into effect on January 1st.

But according to the provisions of the clau the 2-cent rebate is made only on unbroken packages containing not less than 250 pounds. In order to present this rebate claim, the dealer or manufacturer having such packages in his possession, must observe the following

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

C. O. Lepper, Druggist, Fort Wayne, Ind., writes: "My little sister, four years of age, was so ill from bronchitis that we had almost given up hope of her recovery. Our family physiciau, a skilful man and of large experi-ence, pronunced it useless to give her any more medicine, saying he had done all it was possible to do, and we must prepare for the worst. As a last resort, we determined to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and I can truly say, with most happy results. After taking a few doses she seemed to breathe easier, and, within a week, was out of danger. We continued giving the Pectoral until satisfied she was entirely well. This indisputable evidence of the great merit of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has given me unbounded confi dence in the preparation, and I recommend it to my customers, knowing it cannot disap-point them."
"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral cured me of a bad cough and my partner of bronchitis. I know of numerous cases in which this preparation has proved very beneficial in families of Young Children, so that the medicine is known among them as 'the consoler of the afflicted.'"- Jaime Rufus Vidal, San Cristobel, San Domingo. "A short time ago, I was taken with a severe attack of bronchitis. The remedies ordinarily used in such cases failed to give me relief. Almost in despair of ever finding anything to cure me, I bought a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and was helped from the first dose. I had not finished one bottle before the disease left me, and my throat and lungs were as sound as ever."—

We are manufacturers and can therefore bring fine Clothing to Atlanta and present it to the retail trade at lower prices than any one else. All the middle-man's profit is saved. That goes to you.

Ordinarily you buy things here at 10 per cent to 20 per cent cheaper than elsewhere. The logic is clear, the fact is plain. To add extra zest and increased impetus to December's closing days, we shall begin at once a general discount sale which will include every article of Clothing that the store or stock contains, Custom Tailoring and all. Old prices certainly represented low values and dashed every transaction with a bargain sauce. That makes this new 10 per cent discount allowed all the more remarkable. Choose as you please 90 cents will from now on possess the potency of $1. The public has confidence in our statements. Hence a discount sale of this character advertised by us invariably commands immediate and interested attention.
